AARON SCAMIHORN

Designer, Illustrator, Screen Printer

Aaron Scamihorn is an illustrator, designer, and gig poster artist from Indianapolis, Ind. With a passion for comic books and a pop art aesthetic, portraiture and graphical illustration are at the core of his creative passion.

“Growing up playing in punk garage bands, I have always had a passion for the music industry,” explains Scamihorn. “As my life focus shifted to art and design, I maintained a connection to that previous passion with gig poster design.” He taught himself to screen print and has been taking every opportunity since to create posters for bands that he loves.

“I take great pride in the fact that I do everything by hand and manage the process from sketch to digital, from creating separations to burning screens and pulling ink across paper layer by layer. I truly feel that there is nothing like a hand-printed poster to commemorate a show and bring you right back to that moment at a concert you loved.”

Scamihorn’s business, Ronlewhorn Industries, with its works proudly designed, illustrated, and screen-printed by hand, has been featured globally on products, advertising, and publications, with clients from Disney and Dollar Shave Club to top touring bands.
