Preserving Cultural Heritage through the use of 3-D Technology

January 10–March 27, 2020

The IUPUI University Library Center for Digital Scholarship has teamed with the Manchester University Archives and Peace Studies Church of the Brethren Collection to 3-Dimensionally scan objects from Manchester's ethnographic art collection. These 555+ art objects were donated to Manchester by alumni and friends who served the international community primarily within the continents of Africa and Asia. The age of objects ranges from pre-1900 through circa 2000, and the provenance of all the artifacts has not been determined.

We believe that this significant collection can be used as a means to understand cultural diversity and heritage. These objects open avenues to the study of diverse aspects of culture that include provenance, ethnography, world trade, aesthetics, science, sociology, and religion.

They provide resources for student projects, advanced scholarship, and inter-visibility exchanges. The collection will continue to achieve educational relevance as it opens student pathways to 3-D technology and to the fields of Virtual and Augmented reality.
