

Sexual Violence Resource Guide

In the case of an emergency, please call 911. If the situation is non-emergency, contact any of the resources below that best fit your needs. We want to support you in deciding what is best for your own healing, and will assist you with accommodations you may need to continue with a safe and successful learning experience.

If you have been sexually assaulted, please know:

- ÿ It was not your fault.
- ÿ There are a wide range of physical and emotional responses to trauma.
- ÿ You have the right to feel safe.
- ÿ You may share your experiences whenever and however it is most helpful for you.
- ÿ You are not alone.
- ÿ You have the right to report to University Safety or local police.
