an extraordinary cycle of giving

Greetings from Manchester College!

We began our new academic year, 2003-04, on Wednesday, Sept. 3, and we are in full stride for the 115th time since 1889. As is our tradition, we opened the year with Convocation. A few of our alumni could be there. For most, this was not possible.

President Parker G. Marden

So, I would like to engage you – as an alumnus, alumna, or another good friend—with the issues that I set before the College community. Manchester College is fully part of an ever-changing society and one that is facing new challenges as we balance safety and security with our basic freedoms. We must confront, perhaps even preserve, the “big ideas” that formed our nation.

Over the next year, as we explore the issues I raised, I would welcome your views. Too often, we think of Manchester as either a place that is one-sided politically or, overall, not especially vibrant in handling ideas. I think we actually do much better than that, and can do better still—to the benefit of the holders of all opinions. So, I encourage you to consider my message in Convocation, as offered below, and offer me your ideas.

At Manchester, we need a new openness to differences in intellectual matters. We need to hear all voices – conservative, moderate, liberal. We need to hold our ground on what we think and believe; we need to test ideas that are long-held; and we need to explore new possibilities, just in case they make more sense. We need to appreciate diversity in ideas.

We need to understand and celebrate this three-part construction.

- Manchester is a good college.
- Good colleges are places of ideas. Ideas are presented, exchanged, tested, evaluated, accepted, rejected, refuted, modified, defended, and promoted. At times, new ideas are created by rubbing two existing ideas together.

- Colleges that are “places of ideas” celebrate academic freedom within which persons of competence and expertise speak or write from their knowledge and experience; such colleges acknowledge everyone’s right to free speech and expression; and they promote an open exchange of ideas.

This means that controversy will not be a stranger on a good college’s campus. It will be an edgy place at times and not every person will understand how someone else could possibly differ from his or her own opinions that are so firmly held. Lest we worry, however, about having too many conflicting or controversial ideas around, there is a marvelous observation by Thomas Friedman, a New York Times columnist. In reporting on the controversy at the University of North Carolina when parts of the Koran were assigned as reading for all incoming students, he wrote:

“One is reminded of Harry Lime’s famous quip in the movie, The Third Man – that 30 years of noisy, violent churning under the Borgias in Italy produced Michelangelo, Leonardo de Vinci, and the Renaissance, while 500 years of peace, quiet, and harmony in Switzerland produced the cuckoo clock.”

This year is one in which we should welcome the “noise” from the diversity of ideas (although without the Borgias’ violence), especially because it is a time when some would have us narrow our thinking, arguing that it is disloyal to ask about causes and reasons when full loyalty is needed. When I met with the faculty to look ahead to the new academic year, I celebrated their shared excellence as teachers, noting how many of them regularly ask the really important questions: Why? Why not? What do you think? Ask these questions yourselves—of yourself, of each other. We are ill-served by those who seek to shape the contours of another’s mind.

Mission Statement

Manchester College is an independent, co-educational college in the liberal arts tradition, affiliated with the Church of the Brethren. It is committed to being a community of faith and learning. Manchester affirms the relevance of values to the search for knowledge and has a dual commitment to intellectual integrity and Christian faith, believing that sound scholarship and learning can strengthen both.

The College welcomes students of diverse interests and ages, as well as those of different ethnic, religious, and racial backgrounds. Within the constraints of financial responsibility, the educational program combines liberal education, career preparation, and education for service, while fostering a desire to improve the quality of life. Manchester College seeks to graduate people who possess ability and conviction, and who understand truth as it is perceived from scientific, moral, philosophical, and historical perspectives.

Within a long tradition of concern for peace and justice, Manchester College intends to develop an international consciousness, a respect for ethnic and cultural pluralism, and an appreciation for the infinite worth of every person. A central goal of the College community is to create an environment which nurtures a sense of self-identity, a strong personal faith, a dedication to the service of others, and an acceptance of the demands of responsible citizenship.

Manchester College philanthropists are the best in the world. OK, so I'm biased, but I do believe this absolutely. In economic times that are at best "challenging," Manchester College philanthropists answered the call (sometimes literally during our student phonathon), providing generous support in the last fiscal year. This Honor Roll is a celebration of gifts received July 1, 2002 through June 30, 2003.

The heart of all gifts we receive is our Manchester Fund. This basic fund helps ensure the budget is balanced and student needs are met. Gifts to the Manchester Fund help attract and retain a caring faculty, enable upgrades to our technology and provide financial aid to 98 percent of our students.

In the College year ending June 30, 2003, our philanthropists exceeded the Manchester Fund goal by more than $8,000 – at 8 percent more than the previous year. That success lies in the loyalty of our philanthropists. Last year, more contributors renewed and increased their gifts than ever before. In addition, 373 people gave to Manchester College for the first time. Our overall alumni giving rate increased to 30.6 percent.

These statistics are important not only for the financial support they represent but also for the overall strength they indicate. That is, as more of our alumni and friends invest in Manchester College, the stronger the institution grows. The percentage of alumni who support Manchester is an important baseline as we apply for grants from Lilly Endowment Inc. and other large foundations and as we continue to shine in the "Best Colleges" guide of U.S. News & World Report.

On behalf of our students, faculty and staff, thank you for your worthy investment. Your generosity makes Manchester College strong.

Cathy Gatchel
Director of The Manchester Fund

The President's Circle recognizes the generous annual contributions of $1,000 or more from our alumni and friends.

Tim and Cynthia Litke '86 McQuinn

“I just wanted to help other people have the same chance I did to go to college”

By Jacinth T. Planer

When Cynthia Litke '86 McQuinn reminisces about Manchester College, she's a student all over again.

Cynthia was the first in her family to secure a degree. “My family had no money, but I didn't realize it until we were filling out the financial aid forms for college. I was shocked to see that we were in the bottom bracket,” she says. She chose Manchester College because her grandmother, Iva McClelland Gorman, attended in 1917.

She accepted several MC scholarships — including an MC Presidential Scholarship and The Carol Barr Miller Memorial Scholarship for education students. She collected government and community scholarships, pooled her savings from part-time and summer jobs and enrolled.

“Manchester College is a place that makes you think. It offered us myriad different pathways and let us choose our journey and our purpose,” says the Monticello, Ind. resident. “I loved my field biology class with Bill Eberly, my chemistry class with Ed Miller ... As a student you were always encouraged to get interested in things beyond your major.” She joined band, A Cappella Choir, Entertainers, theater and talent shows.

“What makes Manchester unique is the teachers. You could pick up the phone to call them at home if you had a problem. As a student, you loved all your professors, even the ones you liked the least. Nowhere else did I find faculty like Charles Klingler, who would call me after class to congratulate me for having the courage to disagree with him and stick by my views.”

Cynthia was fresh out of college, still paying off loans to MC, when she began giving back. “I wanted to help other people have the same chance I did to go to college,” she says.

As a fourth-grade school teacher, she had been giving to the College each year but wanted to do more. Her husband, Tim, an insurance agent, helped her craft a universal life insurance policy and investment plan based on what she regularly gave to MC.

Now Manchester College, which is the owner and beneficiary of her life insurance, receives Cynthia’s annual restricted gift that covers the life insurance premium payments. Her gift brings her substantial federal and state tax breaks. After several years, the policy dividends will cover the premium costs. As the principal increases, so will her ultimate gift to the College upon her death. Redirected into her policy, her charitable giving to Manchester College will increase but has never cost less.

“As such a flexible asset, life insurance is an important vehicle for accomplishing personal and philanthropic goals,” notes MC Director of Gift Planning Edwin L. Cable ’78.

By investing in one another and themselves, Cynthia and Manchester College ensure, as Cynthia says, “we can do for others what others have done for us.”

Teacher's giving a never-ending circle

By Jacinth T. Planer

Vada M. Musser '40 Reiff has two defining priorities: charitable giving and the pursuit of education, whether for teachers, college students or children.

Vada grew up in Indiana, a member of the Church of the Brethren. As a child she met Dan West, founder of Heifer International, and learned the wisdom and simplicity of circular giving.

She earned her teaching certification in 1931, and her bachelor's degree in 1940, and taught in Goshen, Argos and Bremen, Ind. She got her master's in education from University of Colorado and settled in Plymouth, Ind., teaching first-graders and student teachers.

Vada is passionate about supporting MC students studying to be elementary school teachers. "I've always tithed," she says, noting she began tithing with her first high school job in the mid-1920s. "I babysat an infant for $3 a week, and I always set aside 30 cents for the church."

She saved enough to set up regular charitable gift annuities to Manchester College. Part income contract and part gift, such annuities enable philanthropists to secure their own financial stability. The accompanying income tax breaks and guaranteed income for life for the donor make charitable gift annuities popular, says

Edwin L. Cable '78, MC Director of Gift Planning.

Vada now applies what Dan West taught her about circular giving. She establishes charitable gift annuities for Manchester College and the Heifer Project and then tithes her income from the annuities to create more gift annuities. And, with income from several annuities and an unexpected gift, Vada in 2000 established the Vada M. Musser Reiff Endowed Scholarship Fund for elementary education students at Manchester College.

A teacher who enables future teachers. What a wonderful circle!

The Rupel family: a life of homegrown, bountiful dedication to philanthropy

That North Manchester Farmer's Market table brilliantly abloom each week with zinnias, snapdragons and carnations belongs to Annabel Rupel '41 and Esther F. Rupel '47. While their faces may not be familiar to visitors, the note cards scattered among tin-can flowerpots and green bean cartons clearly state their purpose: "Scholarship fund," "Heifer Project" and "Church building fund."

Every ounce of effort and every penny of their sales support these causes and beyond in a long legacy of large, sacrificial donations and pledges.

Oblivious to the scope of their own generosity, the women are cheerily businesslike. Sisters Annabel, 84, and Esther, 79, also are lifelong partners in the business of artful, creative philanthropy. Their chosen task involves an intricate combination of craftsmanship, gardening savvy and passionate commitment to supporting Manchester College.

Their philanthropy, like their garden, is grown, harvested and sown anew in abundance each season. What they cannot produce with modest resources, they seek untapped or overlooked in others. What they find – whether ribbon lengths or human benevolence – they craft or refurbish to maximize everyone's contributions to the greater good.

This cycle of giving generates generosity from people who contribute to the sisters' sales – everything from antiques to zucchini.

The Rupel sisters' generosity begins with their past, their family and their upbringing. Annabel and Esther are two of five sisters. Lois, Annabel, Glea, Esther and Alice grew up during the Great Depression on a homestead in rural northern Indiana. Family commitment to education, service and the Church of the Brethren was intense. The walls of their austere tenant farm house were decorated with generations of framed high school diplomas. Frugality, determination and recruiting from Manchester College brought the oldest sister, Lois, to Manchester College on "faith and $50."

It was the last time anyone had to borrow from outside the family to go to school. Beginning with Lois, each older sister helped the younger sisters through college, and eventually all five earned and hung Manchester College diplomas.

Lois Rupel '36n Tuinstra, the oldest, taught for eight years, volunteered for postwar reconstruction in Europe and then served on the staff of the Church of the Brethren national offices. She died in 1983. Glea Rupel '43 Smith, the middle sister, also taught for several years. She and her husband, Dr. Lee Smith '47, have served at the Church of the Brethren hospital in Castaner, Puerto Rico; Lee has volunteered his services as an ophthalmologist in the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua and Honduras.

Alice Rupel '47 Rohrer, the youngest, taught for several years in Indiana and Ohio. Her husband, Alpheus Rohrer '50, volunteered with the Church of the Brethren in Europe after World War II. Each of the sisters and their families have supported their local Church of the Brethren congregations and organizations.

Story and Photographs
by Jacinth T. Planer

The Rupel generations are among Manchester College's most expansive and loyal families. They have been MC students and staunch supporters through service and financial gifts. Almost 50 immediate relatives are graduates. Another 70 attended the College, and seven have served (or currently serve) on the faculty.

“Other people helped me through school. You can never help the person who helped you. You help somebody else instead.”

-- Esther Rupel

Despite their extraordinary family heritage, Annabel and Esther consider their own lives unremarkable. They feel their work simply upholds the family tradition of supporting service, education and Manchester College.

Annabel Rupel '41 the second-oldest, received her master's degree in 1958 from Purdue University, then was a 4-H and youth extension specialist. For 10 years, she led the Indiana International Youth Exchange. She supports Heifer International, Habitat for Humanity and Church Women United, and is active in the church, its Association for the Arts and Camp Alexander Mack.

Esther Rupel '47 received her master's degree from Purdue University in 1957 and her Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1971. She taught at Purdue from 1957 to 1989, received Purdue's "Best Teacher Award" and is now professor emerita. She has been active in local, district and national levels of Church of the Brethren and supports Heifer International, Camp Alexander Mack and Timbercrest Senior Living Community. She was a Manchester College Trustee from 1986 to 1988.

When their parents died, the sisters established The Byron and Edith Rupel Memorial Scholarship Fund. "Other people helped me through school," Esther states. "You can never help the person who helped you. You help somebody else instead."

With an initial gift from Esther, family fund-raising for the scholarship began. The sisters started by selling the books that had sparked the parents' childhood interest in learning. "We sold a hundred books with copyrights before 1900 that had belonged to our parents," says Esther. The money from each $1 book sold at the Purdue sale went straight to the scholarship fund. Then came the yard sales, porch sales, garage sales and bazaars, where they sold garden produce, canned goods and handicrafts.

Rupel philanthropy to Manchester College spans the possibilities, from volunteering their time, to annuities, will bequests, to "cheerleading" for the College's programs, to outright gifts to scholarships.

In 1993, Annabel and Esther moved to Timbercrest Senior Living Community in North Manchester and devoted their time to gardening, crafts and sales.

"Our car," says Annabel, "has never made it into a garage because the garage is always full of things to make over and sell. We've always fixed up things from garage sales, because it helps the recycling process."

In deep gratitude for the Rupel family's lifestyle of support, Manchester College in 1999 presented them with its Certificate of Responsible Philanthropy. The College continues to celebrate the harvest the Rupel family shares so that future students will reap a bountiful education and commitment to service.

Annabel Rupel is a familiar face at North Manchester's Farmer's Market.

“... give back whatever you can” says young alum

By Laura L. Sloop '99

Mark B. Heiden '01 always knew he wanted to become a teacher, just as he knew he wanted to give back to society. He learned about both at Manchester College.

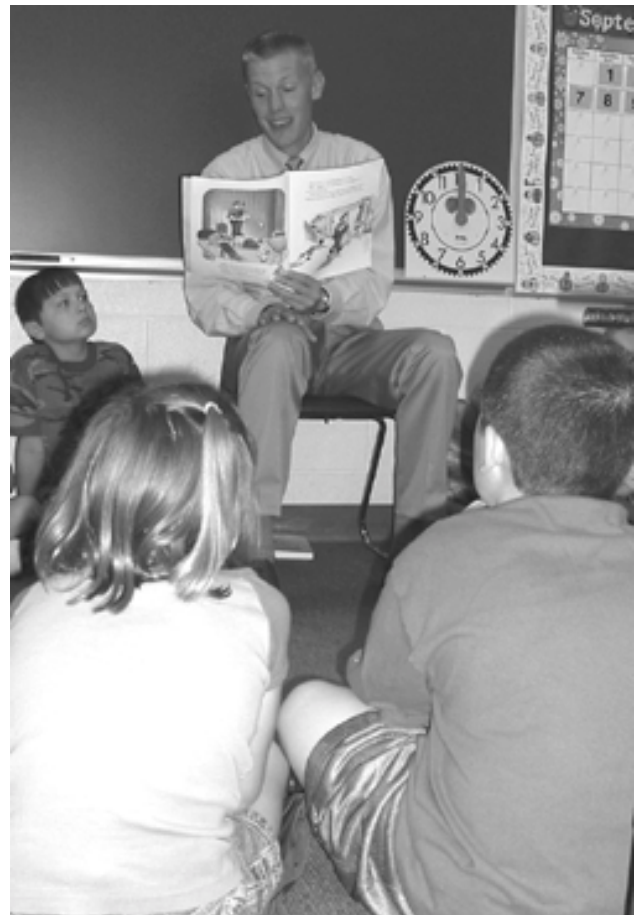

At MC, Mark was a director for the Office of Volunteer Services, on the Garver Hall Council, a coach for the Indiana Reading Corps and a Student Orientation Leader. And he played Spartan tennis all four years.

Today, he teaches third-graders at Manchester Elementary School and runs the North Manchester community tennis lessons program, coaches Manchester High girls tennis and is the MHS assistant boys tennis coach.

“Teaching is an amazing job because you get to touch lives every day. You are thrust into an important role that you can never take lightly,” says Mark, who tries to show his students he cares about them. “Even though I teach third-graders, I believe their opinions are important.”

Mark also believes in and supports the mission of his alma mater.

“It’s important to give back whatever you can. There are many ways to be an active MC alumnus,” Mark says. “Money is the first thing that comes to mind, but getting a Manchester College license plate, talking to students about attending MC and attending alumni events are all great ways to give back.

“If you are still relatively close to Manchester, you can help the Career Services Office with job information and internships, you can be a mentor to a College student in your field, or you can come in and help with panels and discussion groups on your field of work.”

“I don’t give huge sums of money, but, I know that every little bit helps. I figure that if I give $50, that’s part of a scholarship, a salary or maybe even part of a new building.”

He believes there are many more ways to give back to Manchester than financially. “Give of your time and knowledge,” he says. “Also, promote Manchester College! I hope others can see that you don’t have to be rich or old to be a powerful force for Manchester College. I think everyone has something they could do to help MC!”

Meet Paris and Trustee Becky Ball-Miller

A get-rich story of sacrificial giving that began with the lessons of poverty

Jacinth T. Planer

It's a popular "fiscally happily ever after" tale of capitalism: The little guy makes it big, reinvests his profits to enlarge the business and acquire even more wealth. After all, it takes money to make money, right? Giving away one's profits might seem counter-intuitive.

Not for Paris Ball-Miller '81 and Manchester College Trustee Becky Ball-Miller '82. Despite modest upbringings, they have achieved affluence and are giving away more than they have.

When the Lilly Endowment Inc. challenged our Trustees to collectively donate $1 million to the College for a $1-for-$1 match, Becky found the offer compelling. "What message would it have carried if Trustees hadn't been able to meet that?" The Ball-Millers pledged more than $50,000 and told MC fund-raisers to come back for more if necessary.

Then, Paris and Becky made the ultimate sacrificial gift. They took out a loan to fulfill their commitment to the Trustee challenge.

"I see it as an investment in the future of students and the culture the College exudes" says Becky. "I'm a firm believer that investing in missions like Manchester College has the power to change the world."

Paris came from an impoverished family. "We were 'financially challenged,'" says Becky of her own family, as well. For Becky, who had little, giving meant what she placed in the church plate.

Young Paris' father left and his mother fell terminally ill. Her health deteriorated as their home sunk into disrepair. Paris was 14 when his mother died. After a series of youth and foster homes, he went to Milford, Ind., to spend his high school years with relatives.

After graduation, Paris decided to give Manchester College a try.

Yet he had "zero confidence I could succeed in college," he says. "I was thinking, I don't belong, I won't last, I'm not smart enough." But there was no turning back. "There was no way to fail, because there was no place I could return. So I took college seriously." That attitude appealed to tough-love teachers and drew Paris to study business and accounting, where he excelled.

Paris worked for several accounting firms and businesses. He was hired at poultry processor T. Troyer Foods in Goshen, Ind., in 1988 and served as controller and then general manager. In 1995, Paris and Becky bought the business and expanded into interstate food distribution.

Childhood poverty, an accounting background, a motivation to succeed and a value for giving all have converged. Paris and Becky reinvest their profits in Troyer employees, the Goshen area community, organizations of Church of the Brethren ... and in Manchester College.

"I hope I can help Manchester College give someone else like me a chance," says Paris. "I have a special sympathy for first-generation kids from difficult backgrounds."

All MC Trustees joined the Lilly Endowment challenge to raise $1 million.

If you have ideas or values – political, religious, or social – that are so tightly-held that you choose to maintain them without examination, that is fine. Just understand that is what is being done, and that is probably wasting part of a significant investment in higher education. The better course is to let those ideas out in the air and watch them grow and even morph into something that will serve still better without compromising the core of beliefs. One's faith, one's political orientation, one's convictions about social behavior will never leave a person simply because he or she is more open to others' questions. Why? Why not? What do you think?

While I listen to the conversations that take place on campus, I do hope to hear from you.

With best wishes.

Parker G. Marden, President

How can you give away the family farm? Why would you?

Virgil St. John '43 grew up on a farm just outside of Bryan, Ohio. He plowed the land that his grandfather and father had each plowed before him. This past winter Virgil and his wife, Ruth Wilson '46x St. John, gave that farm to Manchester College. The College sold it on March 28, 2003, Virgil's grandfather's birthday.

"There's no better way to invest the family farm than in the lives and future of young people," says Virgil. The land that supported three generations of a family now will help provide a new Science Center for the students of Manchester College. It also will support Virgil and Ruth with added income for life. Far from a quick decision, Virgil thought about giving the farm to the College for years. This was just the right time.

Leaving the plow, Virgil earned a degree in chemistry from Manchester College in 1943. Virgil and Ruth met at Manchester. They went on together through Purdue University and Virgil's career with Eli Lilly and Company. For a brief time, they both were chemists at Lilly. Virgil served on the College Board of Trustees from 1982 to 1991.

With their backgrounds in the sciences, Virgil and Ruth share the vision of a new Science Center for Manchester College. They are glad they are investing in the College's future and in the lives of the young men and women who will study here. "Manchester has a long, outstanding legacy in the sciences. We benefited from that as students and in my career," Virgil said. "It is only fitting to help continue that opportunity for others."

THE NEXT STEP!

A Campaign to Strengthen Manchester College

Launched in July 1996, The Next Step! seeks to raise $52 million by June 30, 2006.

Currently, The Next Step! is focused on three capital projects: the Science Center, the College Union and Winger Recital Hall. Support of the Manchester Fund also is key to the campaign.
