This spring we celebrate small acts that have big impact! Manchester College is powerful beyond its size.

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it's the only thing that ever has." Those words by Margaret Mead describe Manchester.

It is no vague dream that transforms our students' lives. Our mission guides us:

"Manchester College respects the infinite worth of every individual and graduates persons of ability and conviction who draw upon their education and faith to lead principled, productive, and compassionate lives that improve the human condition."

It is not our goal to graduate students who become rich and famous, although some do. It is our goal to graduate persons of ability and conviction.

Over the decades, Manchester graduates have taught hundreds of thousands of elementary and secondary students, communicating their high expectations for learning. Our social work graduates help their clients learn to give back to their communities. Our accounting graduates bring clear ethical standards to their firms. Our business majors treat their customers fairly. Our graduates fill diverse positions of leadership in the Church of the Brethren.

One at a time, our graduates transform lives.

We welcome you to spend time with this magazine to see how small individual actions lead to big results. You also will see how thousands of monetary gifts add up to a dramatic total.

We are small and mighty. We are Manchester College.

MC UPDATES PHYSICAL EDUCATION PROGRAM, ADDS NEW MAJOR IN FITNESS AND SPORT MANAGEMENT

Manchester College next fall will offer a new degree in response to heightened interest in careers in sport management and fitness. And,

> MC is shelving its outdated health and physical education label. Henceforth, it's the Department of Exercise and Sport Sciences.

The new major – fitness and sport management – comes with three concentrations that students will find interdisciplinary and challenging, said Department Chair Lana Lawver '66 Groombridge. The major replaces the physical education degree, but does not increase credit-hour requirements. The concentrations: • fitness

> • recreation and youth sport • sport management

Students who select sport management, for example, will take classes in advertising and accounting toward a bachelor of science degree. Possible electives include organizational communication, non-profit management and human resource management – courses offered in other departments. Business faculty will include relevant assignments for sport majors. "Incoming students are looking for sport management," Groombridge said. "They need to know about marketing, management and operations ... so we decided to provide a stronger major identity for those students." The College is marketing the new major to high school students. Currently, 114 students are seeking degrees within the department.

Most area colleges do not offer business classes in their sport majors. "Students need the business background, as well as the ability to communicate," Groombridge said.

Manchester will continue to offer a degree in athletic training, its most popular exercise and sport sciences discipline. Also popular is physical education teacher training, along with health education and adapted physical education, all accredited through the Department of Education.

Why the department name change to exercise and sport sciences? "Students don't relate to physical education anymore," said Groombridge. "They think it is teaching. It has been an umbrella term that has outlived its time. The new title more accurately defines the breadth of our field."

IT'S A FACT: MANCHESTER GRADS FIND JOBS QUICKLY AFTER GRADUATION

Manchester College guarantees it: Students who cannot land a job within six months of graduation can return to school for another

Yogo student Katy Garrett '09 year, tuition free. The guarantee is testimony to the extraordinary – and quick – job successes of Manchester College alumni.

In its latest survey, the College learned that almost 97 percent of its Class of 2005 are working or continuing their education – all within six months of their May 22 commencement. The statistic is no estimate or guesstimate. The MC Office of Career Services contacted every one of the 213 May graduates.

More than 76.5 percent are in jobs, 18 percent are in grad school or other schooling and four of the 2005 grads are in full-time volunteer work, reported Betty Phillips '72 Butterbaugh, who connects with every recent grad during December for the annual survey. Only seven of the 2005 grads are still trying to find jobs; one is not seeking employment.

The statistic is not an anomaly: Year after year, the six-month job rate for recent MC grads is 94-95 percent.

Almost 72 percent of Manchester's working 2005 grads have found jobs within their fields, a gratifying statistic in these hard economic times. Particularly successful in finding their career jobs were majors in accounting and business, education (teachers) and the sciences.

Manchester's May 2005 grads are teaching in schools throughout Indiana – in Akron, Auburn, Avilla, Bainbridge, Bremen, Butler, Columbia City, Crawfordsville, Crown Point, Churubusco, Elkhart, Fort Wayne, Francesville, Frankfort, Goshen, Indianapolis, Lagota, LaGrange, Lebanon, Logansport, Mentone, Michigan City, Shelbyville, South Bend, Wabash, Walkerton, Warsaw and Waterloo.

Others are beginning careers as naturalists, accountants, case workers, supervisors, management trainees, information technology technicians and staff writers, for example.

And Manchester's job guarantee? The College has had to "pay up" only once, said Registrar Lila VanLue '79 Hammer.

COLLEGE DELIVERS $10,000 CHECK TO HELP NORTH MANCHESTER BUY FIRE TRUCK

President Jo Young Switzer on Dec. 8 handdelivered a $10,000 check – the first payment on Manchester College's commitment to help finance a new $318,000 pumper truck for the North Manchester Fire Department.

"We are happy to support the North Manchester Fire Department's efforts to provide first-rate protection for the entire community," said President Switzer. "This demonstrates the mutually beneficial relationship between the town and College and respects the challenges we face to provide a safe community for all who live and work here."

President Jo Young Switzer delivers $10,000 to North Manchester Fire Chief Dan Renz.

The College will give the Fire Department $4,000 annually for the next six years. The town of North Manchester is providing the $78,000 down payment for the pumper, said Town Manager Dan Hannaford.

"The Fire Department would have been several years away from being able to finance a new truck on our own," said Fire Chief Dan Renz. "To me, this shows that Manchester College doesn't want to be just the college on the corner of town; they intend to be a part of this whole community by being involved in matters that effect all of us."

The College and retirement centers also helped buy a $500,000 aerial truck for the Fire Department.

MC STUDENTS JOIN AMERICAN LEGION IN HELPING AREA NEEDY FAMILIES

It all came down to pennies when residents of Manchester College's Garver Hall raised $1,525.66 to help the American Legion Auxiliary bring a merry Christmas to needy families.

Students in each wing of the residence hall staged a "Penny War," garnering points for larger coins and bills and losing points for pennies collected. In the final hours of the two-week challenge, hundreds of dollars in cash arrived in the collection containers, said Amanda Myers-Walls '63, Garver Hall director. The students gave the cash to American Legion Auxiliary Post 286 for its holiday family fund. About 230 students live in Garver Hall.

AREA NONPROFITS BENEFIT FROM MC CLASS ASSIGNMENT

Two Wabash County nonprofits will benefit from a lesson in interpersonal communication taught at Manchester College last fall.

Students in communication classes of Professor Marcia L. Benjamin '78 formed teams to create and propose workshops on difficult conversations. The top three presentations received cash prizes that the students donated to the local nonprofits.

Our Children, Our Future, a North Manchester program to help families with children succeed, received $150 and the Wabash County Red Cross received $50.

The winning team of Katherine Leese '07 of Kokomo and Danielle Shepherd '06 of Warsaw proposed a workshop for middle school students on how to reduce everyday anxiety in conversations. The workshop uses simple dance steps as metaphors.

95-YEAR-OLD POLITICAL ACTIVIST "GRANNY D" BRINGS CONVO AUDIENCE TO ITS FEET

Political activist Granny D, famous for her 3,200-mile trek across deserts, up mountains and through snow, added the Manchester College mall to her travels Nov. 7. The 95year-old entranced a Cordier Auditorium audience packed with students, faculty, staff and neighbors.

Political activitist Granny D heads across campus after an inspiring convocation Nov. 7 that drew a standing ovation from students.

Doris "Granny D" Haddock warned about special interest groups and big business mucking up politics, and urged students to make their voices heard. "The improved social state of the last 100 years is due in part to passionate college students," she said. "There is a plan for you out there."

The charmed students impulsively rose to their feet in applause. "Meeting Granny D was truly a breath-taking experience for me. For her to do what she does, let alone at her age, is truly amazing," said Oak Leaves reporter Josh Sigler '06. Granny D confided she was pretty impressed with Mr. Sigler, also. Then she picked up her cane and headed off across campus.

ENCORE! MANCHESTER'S CHOIR AND ALUMNI RETURN TO CARNEGIE HALL IN SPRING 2007 – DIRECTED BY DR. DEBRA LYNN

The A Cappella Choir and alumni will return to Carnegie Hall in spring 2007, with the College's music director, Dr. Debra J. Lynn, wielding the baton! And, the program again will feature an original composition by Dr. Debora E. DeWitt, associate professor of music.

Carnegie Hall is one of the world's premier concert venues. The 80-member Manchester choir will join other choirs for the 200-singer performance on May 26, 2007, all directed by Lynn, associate professor of music. The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. on a Saturday night – prime time for New York City!

Lynn has selected DeWitt's Prayer for Peace, which the A Cappella Choir sang during its 2004 Peace Tour of the magnificent cathedrals of Italy and the Vatican. Also on the program is an extended work, The Peaceable Kingdom, by Randall Thompson. The Manhattan Chamber Orchestra will accompany.

"Having Prayer for Peace performed alongside The Peaceable Kingdom is a great honor and very exciting," said DeWitt. "I am looking forward to hearing the choral clusters in Prayer sung by a 200-member ensemble with a professional string orchestra. I imagine the sound will be crisp and full – I can't wait to hear it."

Manchester College last took the Carnegie Hall stage in 2001, singing DeWitt's Parting in a prelude concert and then joining other choirs for the main event, directed by John Rutter.

"Carnegie is so special because it's a large hall, but it's fairly shallow, so you really feel the presence of the audience," said Lynn. "And the acoustics are so amazing – you hear yourself just as the audience hears you. That's why performers all over the world love to play and sing at Carnegie Hall."

Students and alumni will pay a fee to participate in the five-day, four-night New York City residency. The College will charter a bus, and conduct fund-raisers, Lynn said.

FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR-IN-RESIDENCE BRINGS LATIN AMERICA EXPERTISE TO CAMPUS

Dr. Jorge Iván Bula of Bogotá, Colombia, is sharing his expertise in Latin American politics and economy as a Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence at Manchester

College for the 2005-2006 school year.

Dr. Bula says he hopes his teachings will inspire Manchester College students "to think about and even to suggest alternative answers that may contribute to democracy building and peaceful conflict resolution" in Latin American countries.

For almost 20 years, Dr. Bula has lectured on globalization, human rights and Latin American development. "Our students are learning from one of the best minds in the field," notes Dr. Timothy A. McElwee '78, associate professor of peace studies.

Dr. Bula is teaching Human Rights in Latin America this spring and has led seminars and presented at conferences across the nation. He also taught a fall course in Economic Development, gave an MC convocation and has speaking engagements at area colleges and service clubs.

Dr. Bula served as a vice-dean of Universidad Nacional de Colombia in Bogotá, where he coordinated the Ph.D. program in economic sciences. He holds a doctorate in sociology from Catholic University of Louvain in Belgium and an economics degree from The University of Manchester in Great Britain.

Manchester last hosted a Fulbright Scholarin-Residence in 2000-2001, when Akosua Perbi of Ghana brought history lessons to campus. In addition, Manchester has sent 18 students to other countries on Fulbright scholarships, the most per capita of any Indiana university or college.

MANCHESTER RESEARCHERS REPORT DECLINE IN VIOLENCE AND HARM

While violence statistically is on the decline in the United States, the nation is setting an alarming trend in how it treats those most vulnerable: our hungry, homeless and uninsured families. That's the report from researchers at Manchester College in their latest National Index of Violence and Harm, which has received considerable attention from the media.

Several statistically significant trends emerged in the study of U.S. Census data by three faculty members and a student.

In 2004, more than 81 percent of U.S. major cities turned people away from overwhelmed shelters, while families with children comprised 35-40 percent of the U.S. homeless population. In that same year, 45.8 million people were without health insurance.

Nevertheless, the latest National Index of Harm and Violence shows positive trends in 14 of the 19 variables measured over the nine-year study period. "As opposed to the more familiar and dramatic personal harm, such as homicide, societal harm is just as destructive and is far more pervasive in our society," notes sociology and social work Professor Bradley L. Yoder, one of the researchers. "Many more people are adversely affected by structural and institutional forces."

The clearest example of worsening societal harm is social negligence, which continues to climb. Although the high school dropout rate fell significantly in 2002 to 3.4 percent, in 2003 it rose to 3.8 percent.

The Manchester College research team is led by psychology Professor Neil J. Wollman, and also includes James Brumbaugh-Smith '84, associate professor of mathematics and computer science, and Jonathan Largent '08 of Muncie. The faculty members have been compiling the index since 1995.

The Manchester College research is unique in considering homelessness and dropout rates together, said Wollman, senior fellow of the Manchester College Peace Studies Institute and professor of psychology. "By examining them together, we can see whether our society responds adequately to the needs of its citizens, particularly those who are most vulnerable," he said.

transforms campus with $70 million fund drive

Campaign concludes one year ahead of schedule, $20 million over goal! anchester College is celebrating the conclusion of a fund-raising campaign that gathered $70.2 million – transforming the campus and raising $20 million over goal a full year ahead of schedule!

On Jan. 31, 2006, the Board of Trustees and President Jo Young Switzer announced the conclusion of The Next Step! A Campaign to Strengthen Manchester College. "Hope, hard work and persistence made this campaign a success," said Dr. Switzer. "It takes a community to complete a campaign so well."

The campaign, begun with a seemingly impossible $49 million goal in 1996, gained momentum in the excitement of the fund raising, and trustees four years later re-set the goal at $52 million. The premier projects were a $17 million Science Center; enlarging the athletics, library, parking and College Union facilities; and enhancing technology, the scholarship fund, support for faculty development, liberal arts and the endowment.

The trustees also announced a spring groundbreaking to double the size of the union – the final project of the fund-raising campaign. The new $7.6 million union, at almost 52,000 square feet, will become the gathering place for the North Manchester campus, with larger dining commons, the Campus Store, snack bar, offices for student organizations and career services. Most projects of the campaign exceeded its goal, but some of the successes were stunning:

- Faculty and program development raised almost $11 million – 727 percent of goal.
- Scholarships totaled more than $8.2 million, exceeding goal by $5.2 million.
- Information technology almost doubled its $500,000 goal.
- Funds for parking, grounds and other public spaces more than quadrupled the $500,000 goal.

"For each gift, we are immensely grateful."

Throughout the campaign, Manchester did not break ground on a new building until the full amount of the project was raised. All buildings related to this campaign were built without incurring long-term debt.

- $17 million Science Center, dedicated in 2005
- $1.3 million Wine Recital Hall and Link Gallery, dedicated in 2004
- $1.5 million expansion of Physical Education and Recreation Center, dedicated in 1998
- $1.4 million renovation of Funderburg Library, dedicated in 1999
- $7.6 million renovation of College Union, groundbreaking in 2006

The campaign was ambitious for such a small college.

Gladdys Muir Peace Garden

Lobby of Wine Recital Hall

Manchester has 1,100 students and donor base of 15,000 alumni and friends. It also has extraordinary alumni support, which blossomed during the campaign. Beginning with a donor level of 20 percent of its alumni 10 years ago, 33 percent of the College's alumni donated in 2005. The national average is about 21 percent.

Another impressive accomplishment is that 99 percent of the faculty and 69 percent of the staff contributed to the campaign, as well as 100 percent of the trustees.

Manchester recorded a 41 percent increase in donors over the life of the campaign – almost 5,000 new donors! Significant was the contribution of Lilly Endowment Inc., which made outright donations and matching grants. These challenge grants helped the College increase donor participation significantly. "The Endowment fanned the giving fire, providing us with exciting opportunities to multiply the generous donations," said Switzer.

Some of the giving was sacrificial. Several members of the Board of Trustees took out loans to meet the challenges, noted Campaign Chair William N. Harper '66. "For each gift, we are immensely grateful," said Harper, a former trustee. "The campaign has generated a momentum that continues to energize campus – excited students learning in new and renovated buildings, with innovative equipment at their fingertips, and taught by expert faculty who are finding ways to become even more effective teachers."

Other projects contributing to the campus transformation included the Gladdys Muir Peace Garden, additional parking, burying utility wires, new lighting on the east side of campus and landscaping.

"When the planners and the organizers met in 1996 to set priorities and form committees (for The Next Step! campaign), we all had a vision," said Harper.

"Together, we committed to preserving the qualities that set Manchester College apart from other colleges or universities our size. Together, we chose to secure the College mission."

Follow in faith,

Church of the Brethren leadership has many roots in Manchester College

> By Kirby Jasper '06 and Noah Kinsey '05

Filed with Church of the Brethren leaders and you'll catch the eye of more than a few Manchester College grads. The scene is testimony to how far the Brethren have come from their original stance on education.

Stan Noffsinger '76

In the 1800s, many Brethren considered college undesirable, certain it would "puff up the young with vain knowledge." Schooling was too worldly and would detract from our journey with God. "We would deem colleges a very unsafe place for the simple follower of Christ, in as much as they are calculated to lead us astray from the faith and obedience to the gospel," was the statement of one Annual Conference back then.

lead by consiction

The irony is the outpouring of Church of the Brethren leaders from Manchester College, where students explore, learn and grow more in their faith every day – and develop skills that take them right to the top leadership of the denomination.

Church of the Brethren leaders rooted in a Manchester College education include pastors, program leaders, denomination leaders, deans, professors and counselors. They work with children, with actuaries, with the elderly, with college students and seminarians. They lead congregations and districts, Annual Conference and committees, and even the entire Church.

They range from Bob Gross '77, co-executive director for On Earth Peace to Harriet Winger '63 and Ron '63 Finney, former district co-executive ministers for the South/ Central Indiana District: to Kathryn Goering '73 Reid, executive director of the Association of Brethren Caregivers, to L. James Abe '72, pastor of Akron First Church of the Brethren in Ohio.

Mention some MC grads, such as the late Dan West '17 and Anna Beahm '18 Mow, and you'll ignite conversations about their vision and service toward a better world.

Dan West '17 West began what today is known as Heifer International. Not strictly Brethren by any means, Heifer International is recognized by most religions and service groups as an important marker of world relations and a uniting of people. While Heifer International is West's most famous accomplishment, he also was a leader in peace education and a conscientious objector.

Mow, treasured for her work with humanity, left Manchester for Bethany Seminary. She was a missionary in India for 17 years and taught Christian education at Bethany for 18 years. Mow continued to provide leadership well past retirement, speaking and teaching around the country and setting a strong example of faith-based service. Manchester College respects the faiths of all members of its community, including those who chose not to follow a faith. Most MC students come from non-Brethren backgrounds. Indeed, only about 11 percent of incoming students declare Church of the Brethren as their denomination.

But, as students, faculty and staff immerse themselves in Manchester College life, many are captivated by the Brethren respect for all individuals, and dedication toward peace, reconciliation and service.

Stan Noffsinger '76 is general secretary of the General Board – the pinnacle of Church of the Brethren leadership. Raised in the

"Manchester allowed me to explore issues of identity and calling with a caring and compassionate academic community."

> Church, Noffsinger always has been surrounded with rich nurturing relationships with his faith. First as a pre-med major and later as a communication major under Professor Paul W. Keller '35, Noffsinger felt able to explore worlds beyond the Church of the Brethren and ask poignant questions about meaning and faith.

"Manchester gave me permission to explore my own faith instead of the faith of my parents," Noffsinger recalls. "College never undid my faith but enhanced it. Manchester gave me permission to go beyond what I knew before."

Chris Good '74 Douglas

Chris Good '74

Douglas arrived at MC as a member of the United Methodist Church. "Manchester's deep connections to the denomination have been one of the things that was most valuable to me as a student there," says Douglas.

"Manchester College actually was my inspiration to go into leadership in the Church of the Brethren," she says. "One of Christopher Bowman '84, a former chair of the General Board, says Manchester College played an important role in developing his leadership skills. "It allowed me to explore issues of identity and calling within a caring and compassionate academic community."

Brethren colleges continue to be important resources in the development of Church leadership, says Bowman. "In a formative way, they help shape students in a way that is still connected somewhat to the historic truths of faith. Yet, in a reformation style, they encourage students to make those truths evident and relevant to their current, everyday lives."

Bowman also chaired the General Board's Redesign Steering Committee. Widely published, he currently is pastor of Oakton Church of the Brethren in Vienna, Va. He was 2004 moderator for the denomination.

my professors, Al Deeter '53, encouraged me to think about going to Bethany Seminary and preparing for pastoral ministry. At that time in the early 70s, few women were pastors in local Churches of the Brethren, so I was a little reluctant. But eventually, I felt a real sense of God's call to ministry in the Church."

Today, Douglas is on the Church of the Brethren General Board staff as director of Youth & Young Adult Ministries, guiding others through their formative years of faith. Tim McElwee '78 was a conscientious objector during the Vietnam War, joining the Church of the Brethren the summer before his senior year in high school. After enrolling in state colleges on athletic scholarships, McElwee began to question if maybe a Brethren college would be a better choice for him. He learned about Manchester College at a Brethren youth camp in Ohio. McElwee remembers tackling philosophy and peace studies questions in Professor Ken Brown's laid-back classrooms with Nadine Pence '76 Frantz and Melanie May '76. Pence today is a professor at Bethany Theological Seminary and May is vice president for academic affairs at Colgate Rochester Crozer Divinity School.

McElwee has served as MC campus pastor, as lobbyist and director of the Church of the Brethren's Washington, D.C., office, and as MC vice president for college advancement. Today, he teaches peace and reconciliation and chairs the Manchester peace studies program – remembering well the lessons of Professor Brown, now his colleague.

Dave McFadden, executive vice president, was "brought up Brethren." When he returned with his parents from their missionary work in Indonesia, McFadden was certain Manchester College was integral to his future. He took a year off from his studies to coordinate National Youth Conference through Brethren Volunteer Service. Today, he leads recruiting, planning and marketing for the College.

Some CoB leaders followed in relatives' footsteps of leadership that started at Manchester. Bethany Seminary President Gene Roop '64 recalls watching his father Fred Roop '39 chair a building committee for their Lincolnshire congregation in Fort Wayne. He watched his father stand in agreement on a decision he knew his father

The late Donald Durnbaugh '49 was internationally acknowledged as the "dean of Brethren historians." He authored numerous Brethren histories and taught at Bethany Theological Seminary, Juniata College and Elizabethtown College. In 1986, he served in the highest elected position in the Church of the Brethren, as Annual Conference moderator. (Dr. Durnbaugh died Aug. 27, 2005, at the age of 77.)

Jo Young '69 Switzer says she draws on her family's extensive roots in the Church of the Brethren as well as her Manchester College education as the first female president of a CoB college.

"We are very proud at Manchester College that so many strong Church of the Brethren leaders studied here."

Heritage Tour Energizes CoB Leaders

By Wendi Hutchinson, director of church relations

It's called the Brethren Heritage Tour – tailored especially for CoB college students identified as emerging leaders in the Church. In July 2004, the tour took 13 people to four countries on a journey of the early beginnings of Anabaptism and Pietism and to the places that have shaped Church of the Brethren traditions.

Lead by Dr. Jeff Bach, associate professor of Brethren and historical studies at Bethany Theological Seminary, the group included students from five of the Church of the Brethren colleges. The tour was organized through Theological Exploration of Vocation, funded by Lilly Endowment Inc.

While the trip had many highlights, two stand out: visiting Schwarzenau, Germany, and worshipping with a Mennonite congregation in Surhuisterveen, Holland.

If Brethren have a pilgrimage destination, it is Schwarzenau, birthplace of the Brethren movement in 1708. Alexander Mack, his family, and other Separatists found refuge in this small town, under the protection of a sympathetic count, when they had to flee their homes in 1706.

The Alexander Mack Museum in Schwarzenau houses many artifacts and records of the early Brethren. The museum sits high on a hilltop overlooking the Eder River, where the first eight Brethren baptized each other in 1708. Wading in the Eder River, the Heritage Tour students collected souvenir rocks from the bottom of the crystal clear stream.

"Growing up in the Church of the Brethren, I heard story after story about the early church. Standing next to the Eder River where the first Brethren were baptized, seeing the prison in which some were persecuted, and even just looking out over the hills above Schwarzenau brought those people, our history, our faith alive," said Dave McFadden '82, executive vice president of Manchester College. "Time after time after time I was brought up short by something amazing or humbling. It affirmed my calling to work for a college of the Church of the Brethren that takes developing church leaders seriously."

Worshipping with the Doopsgezinde (Mennonite) congregation in Surhuisterveen was especially meaningful. Many visitors have stopped by just to tour the church building, but our group made some wonderful connections with this small but abundantly hospitable community. This congregation gave shelter to the Schwarzenau congregation of Brethren from 1720 to 1729.

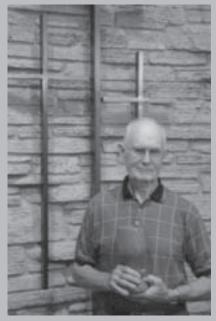

Students who took the tour continue to show an interest in ministry as a vocation. The tour provided daily times for reflection on theology, faith and vocation to help students bring together what they were seeing on the tour with their own understanding of God's call.

"Touring churches, visiting museums and former town halls, and meeting descendants of the founding Brethren leaders were incredible face-to-face experiences I will remember," said Erin Bowers '07 of Fort Wayne. "With knowledge of heritage, one can truly explore and contemplate her or his own faith and vocation."

Manchester triples CoB scholarship

Manchester College has tripled its "Connections" scholarship – to $3,000 for new students. Students who are members of the Church of the Brethren or children of alumni automatically receive this award on top of all other financial aid for which they qualify, up to full tuition.

Church of the Brethren students are important to Manchester College. "Our Brethren students are consistently among our top students academically and as leaders on campus," said Dave McFadden, executive vice president. "They are a key part of what makes us a distinctive college."

Robert Frantz

A dear friend and former business manager of Manchester College, Robert Frantz, crafted Church of the Brethren history when he was a student at McPherson College. In response to a request from the Brethren Service Committee in 1939 and his industrial arts professor, Frantz created a sample wooden cup that Brethren families could use to set aside coins for relief needs. His professor (and cousin) S.M. Dell submitted the 9-inch-tall walnut cup to the committee. From Frantz's prototype, the Brethren Service Cups were created. Robert and Alice Frantz now live at Wildwood, just down the road to Manchester College events and athletics. The Frantzes have a legacy of Manchester College graduates in children Philip Frantz '66, Mary Frantz '68 Young and Bruce Frantz '71x and in granddaughter Jill Frantz '91 DeHoff.

CONVICTION

By Deanna Quinn '05

During Spring Semester 2005, Manchester College's Education Department placed a record 61 student teachers into 18 school systems and more than 35 schools in northern Indiana and Chicago area. The mission: "to prepare teachers of ability and conviction."

> "We need to help prepare teachers who are passionate about teaching and learning and who are able to model the skills expected of high-quality teachers," said Korrine Morrison '83 Gust, instructor of early childhood and special education. "Our teachers need to be academically strong and emotionally literate."

> > The faculty takes C.A.R.E. to prepare teachers. The acronym is the framework of the Education Department, addressing four major areas: curriculum, assessment, relationships and environment. In this framework, we learned how to create a curriculum that complies with state standards, taps into students' knowledge, and accounts for the differences in all learners.

We learned that assessment does not always mean tests and quizzes but also perception, posters, plays and projects. We learned how to build

co-workers, administrators, parents and communities. We learned to create an engaging environment comprised of a community of learners, where not only do students learn from the teacher but the teacher learns from the students.

In addition to this framework, education majors have the advantage a great faculty that provides something more valuable than theory in a book. They provided us with stories and examples of their experiences.

They gave us concrete insights, beyond abstract ideas from psychologists who have never taught (although we do learn that, too). Faculty members put extra emphasis on topics they hold dear to their hearts.

Students of Heather White '90 Schilling hear about state standards, differentiation and prior knowledge in every class period. She also reiterates, if needed, that teaching is acting: acting confident and acting like we belong up there in the front of the room.

Students of associate professor Dr. Lindan B. Hill will hear about No Child Left Behind and lesson plans. Dr. James D. Riley emphasizes the middle school philosophy, "This We Believe." In Gust's classes, be ready to hear all about flexibility and teaching to all students. Dr. Peter N. Gitau teaches about multiculturalism in education, a topic becoming more and more important to education in the United States.

"Our student teachers stand out from those from other institutions," said Riley, whose specialty is secondary education. "Partly, it is due to their background, their work ethic the work ethic reflected in the communities across northeast Indiana. It is also due to the unique culture at challenged them to become better learners and potentially, strong leaders in education."

Manchester College – the close connection with faculty who have personally

Another major component to Manchester's Education Department not only helps education majors succeed, but survive. That is Barbara Burkholder, teacher education program secretary.

Numerous times, she has saved our lives and careers. Really! Six days before the deadline,

Jill Galmeyer '05 student taught at Little Turtle Elementary School

Barb was helping me fill out forms to take the Praxis II, a standardized test by Educational Testing Services that measures knowledge of specific subject areas as well as general teaching practices. Five days before my exit interview and portfolio were due, I called Barb for the deadlines. Three days before graduation, I frantically called asking what I needed to do to apply for my teaching license. One day before the application was due, Barb was reading over my application to make sure all the parts were filled out. She even gave me an envelope big enough to send it in. Many others have relied on this vital link to success.

With 3½ school years of newly gained knowledge and a support staff behind us, 61 of us began the scary whirlwind of student teaching. Faculty's hope was that they had "prepared teachers of ability and conviction." Ours was that we would not forget everything the moment we stood up in front of the classroom.

"The first day of student teaching, I felt really anxious, both in a positive way and in a negative way," says Laura A. Stone '05 of Kokomo, who is using her bachelor's degree (magna cum laude) and certification in K-12 English as a basis for social service with AmeriCorps in Massachusetts.

"I was ready to get my hands dirty, to tackle even the tough cases, and yet it hit me pretty hard on the first few days what a huge responsibility and difficult task teaching is. Once I was actually teaching, some days I felt like an imposter: 'Here I go, pretending to be a teacher again.' And some days I felt at home in front of the class. Other days I felt like I had no idea what I was doing and worried that I'd mess up my kids for life."

Manchester education grads live in every county in Indiana. The top five counties, in order: Wabash, Kosciusko, Allen, Elkhart and Whitley.

For student teaching, Stone was placed at Whitko Middle School, in eighth-grade math and reading, and at Manchester High School, in 10th- and 11th-grade English.

While teaching reading at Manchester Junior High, using Will Hobbs' book, Bearstone, I had a nightmare: I dreamed I was teaching in a bear suit and trying to catch trout with my paw in a stream that was magically running through the classroom. When I got to the part when the last grizzly bear in Colorado gets shot, I woke up in a frantic sweat.

Social studies teacher Murl Huffman '41 has signed his 58th contract with Carrolton Public Schools in Ohio.

"The most difficult part of student teaching was just the pure exhaustion that encompasses student teaching," said Jill M. Galmeyer '05 of Albion, Ind., who student taught at Little Turtle and Coesse elementary schools in the South Whitley School District. "I never knew how much it would completely change my life. I didn't feel like a typical college student anymore, I felt like a working adult."

With her degree and certification as an early/ mid childhood generalist, mild intervention, she now teaches first grade at Coesse Elementary.

While all our friends socialized and watched movies at night, we could be found in the glow of our computer screen, writing lesson plans; green pen in hand, grading papers, or with papers scattered everywhere as we tried to complete our portfolios for the Education Department. Our days began before dawn and lasted well into the night, sometimes seeping into our dreams. Many student teachers are involved in other activities, campus organizations and sports. During my first month of student teaching, I was also a member of the women's basketball team. I had practices and games six days a week that consumed at least three hours of my day. I found myself planning lessons in my head during practice and grading papers and creating activities while on the road to away games. There never seemed to be enough time. Once I got home, I was on the computer well past midnight preparing for the upcoming day.

"What impresses me the most about our student teachers is their work ethic," said Riley. "Whatever they need to do to improve, they do it. Some of my first contacts when I came to Manchester College were practicing teachers in the field. The first three that I encountered stated that they always welcome Manchester College student teachers because they are well prepared to assume the duties and meet the requirements of student teaching."

> Jill Galmeyer's students had all the answers at Little Turtle Elementary School

Even though I missed out on sleep and social events, student teaching was well worth all the morning coffee and nighttime Mountain Dew. I will never forget all the wonderful students I taught at Manchester High School and Junior High.

Manchester education grads live in every state. The top five states, in order: Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Florida.

> It amazed me how enthused the college prep juniors were over a misproportioned map of the Mississippi River that hung on the back wall outlining Huck's travels. I will never forget the excited faces of the seventhgraders as they read how a family survived a shipwreck for 38 days in the Pacific Ocean.

> One moment that touched me deeply was when a group of "my" high school students showed up at the PERC for Relay for Life, an event hosted by the American Cancer Society to raise money for research. I had moved on to my second placement at the junior high and they still thought enough to come and support my mom and her fight against breast cancer. Sleepless nights faded away; these memories remain.

"The best part of student teaching was not that I taught them, but that they taught me," said Amber Hall '05 Hartsough of Wapakoneta, Ohio, who student taught at Manchester Elementary School and married Todd Hartsough '00. "I learned so much by Deanna Quinn used current events for her English lessons at Manchester Junior High School teaching them. Through my students, I learned about myself as a person and as a teacher." Hall, a cum laude elementary education grad, is a fourth- through sixthgrade intervention specialist for the Miami County Educational Service Center in Ohio.

By the end of it all, we began to feel less like imposters and more like we belonged there, standing in front of the room holding the chalk. We stopped short our acting careers and began teaching. Even knowing we are going to get paid peanuts, we all learned the pride in saying, "I am a teacher," and all the dedication shown by MC education majors and professors does not go unnoticed.

"Overall, the candidates from Manchester College seem to be more prepared, not only for the interview process, but they had a firm grasp on various instructional methodologies," said Jim Willey, principal of Wabash Middle School.

"I interviewed dozens of candidates last summer. While every university and college has strong candidates, Manchester College's high level of consistency in producing wellprepared educational professionals is apparent."

I only wish they would have taught me how to hold the chalk without getting it all over myself and that "Code 3" meant your zipper is down!

FULBRIGHT GOES TO JAPAN

Mark Heiden '01 was selected from 2,500 applicants to spend three weeks last June with the Japan Fulbright Memorial Fund for teachers. Heiden teaches third grade at Brooks School of Hamilton Southeastern Schools in Fishers, Ind.

In Tokaimura, Heiden visited schools, stayed in a traditional home with paper and wood walls and experienced the culture, history, politics and community.

He reported he found more similarities than differences between Japanese and U.S. schools. Young students in Japan carry similar backpacks and hats, and gather to walk to school in groups, for example, unlike the individualism of elementary students in the States. The student body was less diverse, also.

While teachers seem to face similar difficulties, the Japanese teachers have a much closer relationship with students' families, Heiden reported.

MC's Gulf alumni continue to struggle

By Josh Sigler '06

T's been six months since Hurricane Katrina left its devastating mark on the southern coast of the United States. Katrina was the costliest U.S. hurricane on record, and with 1,300 fatalities, one of the most deadly.

Residents of the Gulf Coast continue to struggle to get their lives back in order – including members of the Manchester College community. At least 33 alumni called Louisiana and Mississippi home when Katrina landed. Some have relocated. Others are cleaning up the damage and rebuilding. Others remain lost to their alma mater, hopefully only because they have changed addresses.

Meanwhile, the Manchester College community tries to help from afar. The College, its friends and neighbors raised more than $15,000 to help in the relief efforts – forwarding the cash to the Church of the Brethren, which is collaborating relief with Church World Service. MC also offered to waive fees and speed admission for Gulf Coast college students displaced by Katrina, but had no takers. This spring break, the campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity is travelling to Mississippi and peace studies students are going to New Orleans to help rebuild. Prayers are plentiful.

Steve '65 and Janice Thompson '67x Shull had to evacuate their New Orleans home on Aug. 28, one day before Hurricane Katrina swept through the city. For three weeks, their house sat under 7 feet of water.

The first floor of their home was severely damaged, Shull reported. With their daughter Amanda, son Ted, daughter-in-law Dayana and dog Dana, the Shulls traveled for two weeks before deciding to relocate in Columbus, Ohio. Steve Shull, a professor at New Orleans University, was granted office space at The Ohio State University, and continued to teach classes at New Orleans over the internet until he retired in December.

Flood waters climbed 7 feet high in the New Orleans home of Steve '65 and Janice Thompson '67x Shull.

Another grad affected by Katrina is Crystal Pope '74, who had lived and worked as a social worker in New Orleans since 1982. She and her family left their homes early on the morning of Aug. 27 to take their son back to Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

"At that time, we had no idea that the storm would be so severeand would hit the city so directly," Pope said."By the time we returned to the city, it was too

Columbus. The family is grateful for support they have received, and happy to be Midwesterners once again.

"We are fine," wrote James Downey '67, who teaches physiology at the University of Southern Alabama. His and wife Yukiko's home is on high ground, so "for us it was a normal hurricane." Their electricity was off for four days, and they had many limbs and trees down, and a punctured roof.

The devastation "just tears my heart," wrote Roberta "Bobbi" Kump '69 Lane of Flowood, Miss., who reported, "We are fine – very well off indeed." Bobbi and her husband Kirby sustained some roof damage and a few landscape calamities, "but that is all. Considering the storm was a Category 2, we feel very blessed." MC grads helped clean this New Orleans home office of a former North Manchester resident.

She worked at clinic sites and provided door-to-door care for those unable to leave their homes and shelters.

Dr. Whitney, a physician with Kosciusko Family Healthcare, is no newcomer to responding to disaster. She was deployed to the U.S. Virgin Islands in 1995, after Hurricane Marilyn.

The Popes knew their home was still standing, although under water, by looking at satellite photos on the internet. "I was so pleased to see Manchester's response to Katrina," Pope said. "It makes me proud that my alma mater is making such an effort."

water for two months, Miller reported. Black mold was everywhere. Wearing masks, they shoveled the contents of the Rusher's first floor into wheelbarrows. The neighborhood had running water, but no electricity, utilities, or telephones. The American Red Cross came around once a day with food.

Mark Stahl '70 and his wife TroyLynne turned to friends in Alabama and cousins in Indiana in the aftermath of Katrina. TroyLynne's parents' business was flooded and looted by an armed gang, he reported.

Ironically, the Stahls had just moved Mark's mother to a New Orleans assisted living center a month before the hurricane hit. She now is a resident of Peabody Retirement Home in North Manchester.

Stahl, assistant dean and director at University of New Orleans, addressed an MC convocation in February about post-Katrina New Orleans, criticizing government and media reaction to the catastrophe. While his campus has reopened, it has downsized with a radically different feel and look, he reported.

property sustained very little damage," Klingler said.

"My house did not flood, but two trees fell on my patio, knocking down a brick wall, wooden gate and electrical wires."

The Klingler family had electricity restored to their home in October. Klingler remained on the Tulane payroll and resumed teaching in January. Many Tulane employees were not so fortunate, and many have been laid off, he noted.

"Tulane University has been dramatically restructured, a significant impact on the work that I do."

"Phil's dedication to work with the disadvantaged youth since his graduation was a significant reason for selecting him. He and Pam are constant teachers," said Warren Garner '50, who underwrites the award with his wife Helen Yeager '50 Garner.

Phil teaches at White's High School; Pam teaches third grade at Southwood Elementary School, both in Wabash, Ind. They were honored Nov. 10 at a dinner at the College.

The award celebrates Manchester College teacher education alumni who are currently active in classroom teaching in grades K-12. It honors alumni who have made significant contributions to education, who provide exceptional service to the profession, who are deeply concerned for the individual students, and who inspire learning.

HUPFER NEW DIRECTOR OF INDIANA DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES

Kyle J. Hupfer '95 of Indianapolis is the new director of the Indiana Department of Natural Resources.

Said Indiana Gov. Mitch Daniels in appointing Hupfer to the post: "Kyle is a rising star in his field, and like so many of our new crew, he is making a great sacrifice by interrupting his career in the early stages to join our team."

Before taking the state job, Hupfer was a partner at the law firm of Ice Miller in Indianapolis. His law degree is from the Indiana School of Law, Indianapolis.

"Growing up as a hunter and outdoorsman in Indiana, I've experienced firsthand many of our state's vast natural resources," said Hupfer. "It is an honor that Governor Daniels has asked me to serve this role."

Possibly Manchester College's oldest alumna, Mina Lutisha '24x Green, died in December – less than a month after celebrating her 105th birthday. The Warsaw, Ind., native became a registered nurse after studying at Manchester College, working as a charge nurse in the nursery at Niles Hospital. In 1927, she bought her first car, took her first flight in an airplane and married Lucian Green. They had three sons. This photo was taken on her birthday on Nov. 25, 2005, at Miller's Merry Manor in New Carlisle, Ind., where she enjoyed Bible study, group activities and looking outdoors. She died Dec. 18, 2005.

SPARTAN WOMEN, COACHES LEAD HCAC ON GOLF, TENNIS COURSES ... AGAIN!

MC women won a third-straight conference championship at the Old Capital Golf Club in Corydon, Ind. Manchester tied Franklin in the team standings with 727, prevailing in the tiebreaker.

Jessica Strange '07 led for MC, shooting 88-91/ 179 for third overall. Emily Moeller '06 shot 89-93/182 for fifth overall and Melissa Heffner '08 had 94-91/185 for seventh. All three earned All-Conference honors.

Stacey Goins '09, who tied with teammate Katie Brandon '06 for 11th overall, was HCAC Freshman of the Year. Jeff Kock '98 was HCAC Coach of the Year for the secondstraight year.

WOMEN'S TENNIS: FOUR IN A ROW!

Manchester women's tennis took seven of nine flights to net their fourth-straight conference championship. The team finished the regular season 10-2 overall, 7-0 in HCAC. They now have won 22 straight conference matches, including three undefeated seasons in 2003, 2004 and 2005. The last loss was 5-4 to Franklin in October 2002.

Conference champions for Manchester: Milagros Ridoutt '09 at No. 2 singles, Christa Hunter '09 at No. 3 singles, Sarah Conwell '08 at No. 4 singles, Angie Wilcox '07 at No. 5 singles and Kirby Jasper '06 at No. 6 singles. Doubles winners were Elizabeth Weybright '06 and Wilcox at No. 1 doubles and Ridoutt and Hunter at No. 2 doubles. Weybright captured third place at No. 1 singles, while Jasper and Conwell took third at No. 3 doubles.

All-Conference honors went to Weybright, Ridoutt and Hunter. Al Flory '70 picked up his second HCAC Coach of the Year award.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAMS SET STRONG PACE

The men's and women's cross country teams paired outstanding seasons as the men placed second at the conference meet and the women took third.

Josh Nifong '07 was 11th in individual competition, earning All-Conference for the first time as a Spartan.

The women's team placed third out of eight teams at the conference meet, led by All-Conference runners Erika Aburto Martinez '06, who finished eighth, and Meganmarie Pinkerton '07, 10th overall.

FOOTBALL SPARTANS END SEASON 2-8

The Spartans were 2-8, winning only one of the five HCAC contests. Manchester found its way into the NCAA record books following a 69-62 loss to Earlham in Game 2 of the season with the combined 131 points.

Brandon Tugmon '06 received his fourth All-Conference award and graduates as Manchester's all-time leading receiver in six categories. Linebacker Ryan Sons '06 earned First Team All-Conference honors with Tugmon.

Second Team awards went to linebackers Mike Zehner '06, Jared Markham '07 and Zack Smith '07 and to quarterback Joe DeCraene '07.

MEN'S SOCCER END STRONG, 6-1 HCAC

Despite starting the season 2-8-2, the Spartans won their last six conference games in the regular season to end the year 8-9-2 overall, 6-1 in HCAC. Their only loss of the year came from conference champion Transylvania, who won the title by a onepoint margin over Manchester.

Parker Swanson '08, Tim Noffsinger '06, Dusty McNab '06 and Chris Rowe '09 made First Team All-Conference, with Rowe receiving HCAC Freshman of the Year and Third Team All-Region honors.

Parker Swanson '08

Andrew Kaminskis '06 and Tom Garrett '09 garnered Second Team All-Conference awards.

WOMEN SCORE SECOND PLACE IN HCAC SOCCER

Manchester women's soccer ended the year 12-4-3 overall, 5-1-1 in the HCAC to match the men's second place in the conference ... also losing in team standings by only one point to Mount St. Joseph.

Standout Missy King '06 made First Team All-Conference for the fourth-straight season and was the Spartans leading goal and point scorer, with 79 goals and 179 points. Nikki Sieracki '06 also made First Team, while Stephanie Taylor '09 and Erin McComas '08 picked up Second Team honors.

YOUNG VOLLEYBALL TEAM RECOVERS FROM LIGHT START

The Spartan volleyball team ended the year 13-19 overall, 2-5 in the HCAC after starting the 2005 season 3-11.

A young Manchester team highlighted the season with a second-place finish at the Manchester Invite. Anne Griffey '06 was named Second Team All-Conference.

M Association selects Wayne Kreiger '64 as Coach of the Year

By Doug Shoemaker '98

The 2005 Manchester College M Association Claude Wolfe Coach of the Year is Wayne Kreiger '64, whose 29 years leading girls basketball at Columbia City has netted him a 468-160 record — fourth among active coaches in Indiana.

Kreiger has guided the Eagles to 12 conference championships, 16 Sectional titles, eight Regional victories and a Semi-State title. He advanced Columbia City to the 1999-2000 state 3A championship game, finishing runner-up.

He has been named the Journal Gazette Area Coach of the Year, News Sentinel Coach of the Year and Northeast Indiana Conference Coach of the Year and has staffed the Indiana/Kentucky All-Star, Indiana Jr. All-Star and Reebok Indiana North All-Stars teams.

Kreiger and his wife Debbie have five children, including Scott Kreiger '88 and Andrew Bills '98.

The Coach of the Year award was established in 1980. In 1988, the name changed to honor Claude Wolfe '41, who played on the first MC basketball team to make the Final Four. Wolfe coached Manchester College teams for 25 years.

MC INDUCTS FIVE INTO HALL OF FAME

By Doug Shoemaker '98

A long-time dedicated supporter of Manchester College sports and four outstanding athletes joined the Hall of Fame on Oct. 1.

The latest honorees are Dick Sellers '49, Mike Jarvis '68, Steve Hazelwood '69, Anne Wiggin '84 and Robin Wiggin '85.

Mike Jarvis '68 of Franklin has been instrumental in the development of athletics at Manchester College, serving as a friend, motivator and contributor. An accounting major at MC, he spent one year with the Spartan football program. In 14 years with International Harvester Co., he worked his way up from accounting trainee to controller for the 10,000-employee plant.

Jarvis founded Franklin Power Products, manufacturing products ranging from automobiles to locomotives. That venture grew into 17 facilities and more than 2,000 employees before he sold to Delco Remy in 1998. He then formed Jarvis Enterprises, with interests ranging from up-scale housing projects in Indiana to the largest satellite telecommunication company in Poland.

Jarvis has served the Manchester College Board of Trustees for 11 years. He and his wife of 40 years, Sandy, have two grown children and four grandchildren.

Dick Sellers '49 dominated in both track and field and cross country during his two years at Manchester. In the classroom, he was equally quick, using summer school and every other chance he could to graduate in 2½ years.

He was a two-year team captain with the harriers, leading in first place every dual meet action. He won Little State and the Hoosier Collegiate Conference in 1947 and 1948, and the Central AAU Regional meet during the '48 season.

Sellers' second year of track and field competition yielded conference titles in the one-mile and two-mile run. He was Most Outstanding Performer at the Midwest Invitational and won the NAIA State meet. He was team captain for two years.

After coaching a few years, he answered the call to ministry, which he served 48 years before retiring. His bride, Virginia Flora '48, died in 2000. They had five children, 10 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Anne Wiggin '84 was a three-time NAIA national qualifier in track and field, excelling in the 400-meter hurdles, high jump and sprint relay. She was All-American in the heptathlon honors in 1984.

During her freshman year in 1981, Anne was a national qualifier in the high jump, and still holds the school record, at 5'6".

As a junior, Anne helped MC basketball build a winning record, leading the team in steals. On the way to the team's Little State title in track and field, she finished first in 400-meter hurdles, 4x100 meter relay and 4x400 meter relay. Her senior year, Anne set College and district records in the 400-meter hurdles and was All-District. She took All-American honors in the heptathlon after qualifying for nationals for a third time.

Anne still holds the MC track and field school record for the 600-meter (1:37.79), 400-meter hurdles (1:02.32), and the high jump (5'6"). She teaches elementary school physical education in Hiawassee, Ga.

Building a more competitive rivalry than any intercollegiate track meet could ever provide was Robin Wiggin '85, Anne's identical twin. Robin qualified for nationals during her freshman year in the 100-meter and 200meter dashes and set a school record of 17'10" in the long jump. She mirrored her success in 1982, when MC women won their second of three-straight Little State team titles, with Robin joining Anne on the recordsetting 4x100 relay.

During their junior season, the Wiggin sisters staked claim in the 4x100 and 4x400 relay Little State championships. Robin qualified for nationals in the heptathlon, receiving 1983 All-American honors. On the basketball court, Robin helped the Spartans to a pair of 12-9 seasons under head Coach Betty Clark. She returned to the track her fifth year, qualifying for nationals a third time.

Robin still holds a Manchester College record in the long jump (17'10). She is an independent contractor in Hiawassee, Ga.

Steve Hazelwood '69 used his size and strength to dominate on the football field and wrestling mats. He was a four-year letter winner, playing both offensive and defensive line positions, and spent three seasons as the Spartans' heavyweight grappler.

By his junior year, he was All-Conference and NAIA All-District, leading the way for football greats Jim Andrews '69 and Robin Gratz '70. The 1966 Spartans posted the first winning season in 26 years for Manchester and shared the HCC title. He was co-captain for the Spartans his senior year, once again All-Conference and All-District.

Manchester College SPARTAN ACTION

The 1967-68 season brought Steve a conference championship at heavyweight, as he shared a stellar 9-1 season with the Spartan wrestlers.

Steve used his fifth year to serve as a student assistant coach for the 1968 Hall of Fame football team and spent one last season with Hall of Fame Coach Jim Gratz on the wrestling mats. The team placed third at conference, where Steve recorded a team-high 10 pins. Following graduation in 1969, Steve took a teaching position with Northwood High School, where he also was a football coach. He died in a car crash a few months later.

Former teammate and Hall of Famer Robin Gratz '70 noted, "I was recently talking with Ray Hedstrom '69 about our teammate Steve. We remember him as being so intimidating on the field, blowing in from defensive end. We just dreaded scrimmages. Then, away from the field and the mat, so gentle and kind.

"What a privilege to have known him in those years. What a great teacher he would have become."
