2008-2009 FISCAL YEAR

President's REPORT

From the
PRESIDENT

Manchester College has responded to an extremely challenging economic environment with focused and unflagging commitment to our strategic priorities. Throughout our 120th year, we remained on strong financial footing. We made sure students did not suffer the effects of belt-tightening on an already stewardship-conscious campus.

Since 2005, when we adopted new strategic priorities, we have created many cross-departmental initiatives to bring increasingly dynamic and effective approaches to new initiatives and challenges.

From intense faculty discussions that led to the complete redesign of our general education “Core” curriculum to packaging our strengths into a Triple Guarantee enrollment program that put the College in the national spotlight – our eye was on the plan.

Mission Statement

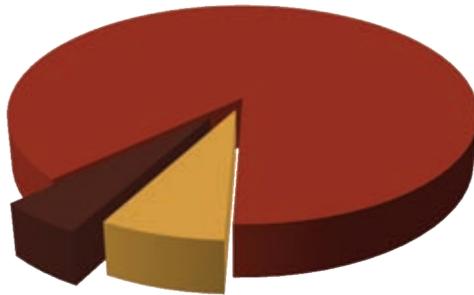

Manchester College respects the infinite worth of every individual and graduates persons of ability and conviction who draw upon their education and faith to lead principled, productive, and compassionate lives that improve the human condition.

This campus-wide responsibility to our strategic priorities brought significant successes in our 2008-2009 fiscal year.

New recruiting strategies that engaged everyone on campus – coaches, students, secretaries, faculty, custodians, and a well-honed admissions and financial aid team – resulted in record scholarship amounts and enrollment of first-year students.

We succeeded by sharing compelling stories with families and students, and also with the media. Marketing our three-year Fast Forward degree and our new Triple Guarantee thrust us into the national spotlight as an authority on affordable higher education. Our story was mission-centered and market smart. We recruited sufficient students and obtained sufficient donations to underwrite our mission to graduate persons of ability and conviction.

It was a good year that positioned us well for the future, despite the economic tailspin. With our major construction projects completed and paid for, we spent much of the year planning.

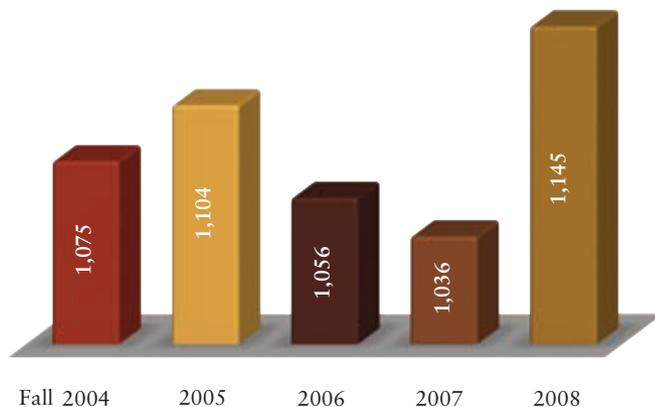

We worked on a new campus master plan, analyzing our space usage and calculating how we can reduce our carbon footprint and utility costs. We also completed an EPA audit – at a fraction of the traditional cost because we collaborated with other Indiana independent colleges.

Strong grant writing brought the College considerable funds for research and internship opportunities for our students. The College oversees a $1 million initiative to clean up the middle Eel River watershed, what alumni know as the Kenapocomoco. State, county, and local agencies and organizations share the initiative.

Significant grants make a college education accessible to first-generation students. They give our students amazing internship opportunities where they can learn about jobs right here in Indiana. We are constantly seeking fresh resources. We submitted $3 million in grant requests to foundations and also received encouraging feedback for possible federal appropriations for new initiatives in the future.

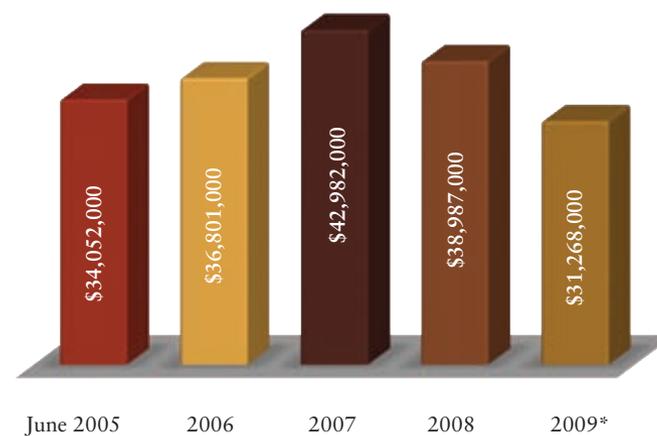

Realizing that this economic climate is a constant threat, we have chosen not to retreat, but to assess and create solutions that are mindful of our mission and our strategic priorities.

Strategic Priorities

1. Tell a compelling institutional story to draw resources to the College.
2. Be “mission centered and market smart” to enhance student learning and maximize the College’s impact in the world.
3. Recruit and graduate a student body large enough to utilize optimally the College’s resources.
4. Generate a financial margin sufficient to support the College’s mission and vision.

ENDOWMENT

We began the school year with our highest enrollment in nearly three decades and worked hard to match or increase that record in fall 2009. We were ever-mindful that Midwest families had lost jobs, that their investments and home values had eroded and that they were – and remain – worried.

Our endowment suffered along with the stock market and all college and university endowments. Fortunately, the College does not over-depend on its endowment for general operating expenses such as salaries, electricity and maintenance. We monitored the endowment closely and suspended drawing from it for the year.

Despite the times, donor dedication to The Manchester Fund remained steadfast, providing the College with important funding which, with tuition, pays our bills for everyday operations and salaries. That fund increased by more than $431,000, including more than a quarter of a million dollars raised by the personal connections made by our 28 student phonathoners. They also raised almost $211,000 in pledges for coming years!

There has been no time in history when the need for persons of ability and conviction is more necessary. We need persons of integrity. In a time of financial greed by some who invest others' resources, we need citizens with educations from environments where there is respect for the desire to "lead principled, productive, and compassionate lives that improve the human condition.”

We need – and celebrate – persons of ability and conviction who weather the storms with keen minds and compassionate hearts.

That is why we are here. That is why we stay the course. That is why we cherish the momentum that moves us forward through the challenges. Those challenges make us stronger.

2008-2009 Highlights

Triple Guarantee promises affordability

With the new Fast Forward three-year college degree far surpassing goals, Manchester in December announced another new enrollment incentive, a Triple Guarantee of financial aid for all students, graduation within four years and a job or graduate school within six months of graduation. Congressman Mark Souder visited campus to help tell the story at a news conference that attracted TV networks.

Faculty focuses on outcomes, flexible curriculum

After considerable research and lively discussion, the faculty adopted a general education “Core” curriculum that focuses clearly on learning outcomes and offers more course options and flexibility. Online courses joined the schedule, with sections in psychology, philosophy, peace studies, macroeconomics, chemical sciences and medical terminology, and more to come.

Auburn Golf Outing holes a cool $1 million

A popular annual golf outing of alumni and friends has gathered a 20-year total of $1 million for Spartan athletics – an unimaginable success when three dedicated alumni first gathered friends on a northeast Indiana golf course to raise $300. Thanks a million, Ken Metzger '67 and Tilson '47 and Dortha Martz '47 King!

Record scholarships + enrollment = “Best College”

More than $11.67 million in scholarships, combined with a 14th consecutive “Best College” ranking from the popular U.S. News & World Report college guide and aggressive recruiting are wooing an unprecedented number of students to find their place at MC. A brim-full campus has been recruited for fall 2009.

Telling the story, boldly with authority

“I understand you’re the authority on three-year diplomas and affordable college,” inquired The Associated Press reporter. It was a full year of national media attention for the College – on television, radio, online media journals, magazines, the Chronicle of Higher Education, and in newspapers. President Switzer joined the national board of the Council of Independent Colleges and wrote editorials and articles to drive home the shared responsibility for making college affordable.

Grants enhance early student success

Two grants are bringing even more quality to a Manchester College education. $375,000 from Lilly Endowment Inc. lets students test drive careers in Indiana and show off the quality of an MC degree to potential employers. A $100,000 Wal-Mart Foundation gift helps introduce even more first-generation students to college and support them to success.

MC leads $1 million Kenapocomoco cleanup

Manchester scientists are leading a $1 million initiative of area conservation agencies and 17 other groups to clean up the Eel River. The Clean Water Act is providing $600,000, with the College coordinating $400,000 in support from agencies, schools, organizations, businesses and individuals. MC science students and faculty are up to their waders into the project.

Spartans soar to national, conference honors

Spartans captured the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference Women’s All-Sports Trophy for the fifth consecutive year. High jumper John Kimmel '10 soared to win the NCAA Division III National Championship. Spartans made three other trips to the nationals, in women’s tennis and men’s cross-country and track.

Speakers show students war, the moon and beyond

Emmy-nominated backpack journalist Kevin Sites received the College’s first “Innovator of the Year” award, world chess grandmaster Susan Polgar took on 25 MC and state challengers simultaneously, and NASA scientist Jim Gaier '74 promoted lunar exploration. And more, including ABC medical commentator Dr. Timothy Johnson (who received an honorary degree), children’s author Susan Polacco and Discussion Days speakers on energy.

Learning from the Legends

Crunching numbers and taking down wrestling opponents: They complement each other, says Mark Baer '91, a Spartan grappler and accounting grad. The work ethic and discipline necessary for both challenges, coupled with “some of the best teachers and mentors in both fields” helped him complete his Manchester College career a “well-rounded individual.”

“Art Gilbert (who led significant expansion of the College’s accounting program) is a legend in the accounting circles,” says Baer, who wrestled under Hall of Fame Coaches Tom Jarman and Al Smith '63, who recruited him to Manchester.

Baer is a managing partner for the Top 10 accounting and consulting firm Crowe Horwath LLP in Columbus, Ohio. Manchester prepared him well for his career. “The professors go beyond teaching what’s in the textbooks. They teach you how to think, how to deal with clients and how to be leaders in the profession,” he says.

Baer hopes to help provide opportunities for other students to benefit from the Manchester experience “like I have.” He is proud of the Spartan wrestling room, one of the largest in Division III athletics (and financed by the College’s last fund-raising campaign), recalling team practices in the basement of Cordier Auditorium. He knows the College will make his contributions count for student-athletes.

“Giving back also allows me to stay connected to the program and I think as an alum, it’s my obligation to stay connected,” says Baer, well-connected as a member of the M Association, President’s Circle and former alumni board member. He and his wife, Beth, have a 2-year-old daughter.

Payback is Logical

An open mind. Critical-thinking skills. Preparation for law school and a career in higher education.

“Manchester Mates” Aaron ’94 and Jodi Pippenger ’95 Fetrow observe that many of the opportunities that made the College a perfect fit for them in the 90s endure today – from late-night Hardee’s runs to January sessions in Europe with history Professor

Mark Angelos to intramurals and stimulating convocations.

“The thing that we love when we go back to visit Manchester is that the feel of the campus is still the same,” says Aaron, adding quickly that the couple is proud of the many changes, too. “I drooled over the new College Union,” says Aaron, now dean of students for Guilford College in North Carolina.

Jodi, who studied biology in the aging labs of Holl-Kintner, is envious of the Science Center. She began her college career at Indiana University, but turned to the alma mater of many of her relatives for more academic advising and personal attention from her professors. She taught science and worked in economic development before they started their family of two sons.

Aaron fondly recalls his Manchester faculty mentors, and especially an hour-long chat with former MC President Bill Robinson, who encouraged the young history major to attend law school. (He did.)

“We give because we still connect to Manchester College,” says the couple, whose geographical distance doesn’t stop them from visiting annually and supporting The Manchester Fund, a habit since graduation.

Threesome Scores Million-Dollar Difference

If Ken Metzger '67, and Tilson '47 and Dortha Martz '47 King could put a value on persistence, they'd give it a score of $1 million. On the final hole of their 20-year leadership of the Friends of Manchester College Auburn golf outing this past June, they tallied $123,200, sweetly topping their $1 million "retirement" goal.

Their scorecard is astounding and inspiring, demonstrating the difference alumni can make not only for the students, facilities and programs of their alma mater, but in friend-making for the College.

The annual contributions to the Auburn Outing have benefited a growing number of student-athletes – with new uniforms, batting cages, track and field equipment, upgrades to Stauffer-Wolfe Arena and a totally renovated Brown Fitness Center that includes new cardio and weight-training equipment. The event has provided additional staff and competitive opportunities with teams outside the normal playing arena.

"I never realized what an impact the outing had on the Athletic Department as a student-athlete," said Greg Hollenbaugh '05, former Spartan baseball catcher and participant in the last three golf outings. "My first year of playing (golf) for Ken really opened my eyes to what an important part the outing plays in the Athletic Department's success."

At the very first outing, 33 golfers raised $300 for Spartan athletics, finishing at Metzger's backyard for a barbeque. Twenty of the golfers were reconnecting with Manchester for the first time in years. Over the last 20 years, the golf outing has reconnected scores of alumni – and attracted new friends (many of them graduates of other colleges), gathering record contributions every single year.

"The success of the golf outing is a result of people getting involved and learning the joy of giving back," says Metzger.

The honorary M Association member and member of the Board of Trustees modestly hoped the Auburn golf outing would reintroduce MC alumni in northeast Indiana to Spartan athletics, but the gathering quickly became the Athletic Department's biggest fundraiser. The hundreds of hours of managing the burgeoning event and drawing in new friends for the College are "repaying a debt to a great institution," says Metzger, an economics and business administration major now retired as president for Herbert E. Orr Co. in Paulding, Ohio.

Til, who played baseball and basketball for the Spartans, and his wife Dortha have helped Metzger lead the golf outing since 1996. Consistent givers to the Athletic Department, the retired public school educators endowed a scholarship in their name for Manchester students from the Auburn area. The couple was inducted into the M Association Hall of Fame in 2004 for their sacrificial commitment to the Friends of Manchester Golf Outing. Metzger was inducted in 2002.

Metzger and the Kings are retiring, passing the torch to College administrators – and, hopefully, some new alumni leaders – but they're not leaving the links. They plan to join the anticipated 150-plus golfers on the links next spring. The odds are pretty good they'll still be making friends for Manchester College.

Doctor of Stewardship

B.S., M.D., M.B.A., OB-GYN. Of all the titles next to Matthew Sprunger's name, guess which one means the most to him?

Sprunger is medical director of clinical information of The Birthplace for Dupont Hospital in Fort Wayne, where he practices obstetrics and gynecology with Women's Health Advantage.

Despite higher degrees from Indiana University School of Medicine and University of Massachusetts (his M.B.A.), Sprunger says his strongest bond is with Manchester College, where he earned a B.S. in biology-chemistry in 1978. "What I gained the most from Manchester wasn't even in the sciences – it was various non-science professors who taught me how to think ..."

A dedicated giver to The Manchester Fund, the Auburn golf outing and Sharon L. Knechel Memorial Scholarship Fund, he also supported construction of the Science Center and Physician's Atrium. "As I got older, I realized that when I was (at Manchester), all the buildings I utilized were there as gifts that had come before me. Now it's my turn to step up and do my part to make sure they will be there for current and future generations of students," says Sprunger, who lives in Fort Wayne with his wife, Janel, and their three children.

"Manchester's commitment to graduating students of ability and conviction sums up what I experienced at the College, why I believe in the College and why I'm willing to support the College."
