2010-2011 FISCAL YEAR

President's REPORT

From the
PRESIDENT

The past year has provided a burst of energy and intensified the focus of the College. We already are seeing the great results that come from a group of good people – faculty, staff, students and friends – pulling in the same direction!

Since 2006, we have concentrated on four focused strategic priorities:

- Tell a compelling institutional story that will draw resources to the College.
- Be “mission centered and market smart” to maximize the College’s impact in the world.
- Recruit and graduate a student body large enough to utilize optimally the College’s resources.
- Generate a financial margin sufficient to support the College’s mission and vision.

Mission Statement

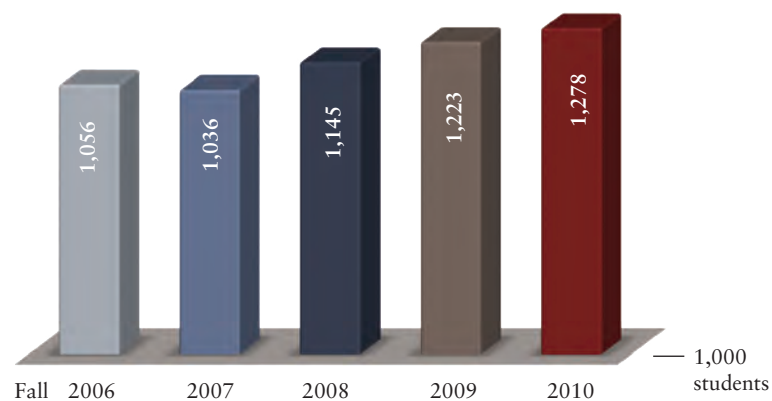

Manchester College respects the infinite worth of every individual and graduates persons of ability and conviction who draw upon their education and faith to lead principled, productive, and compassionate lives that improve the human condition.

In the spirit of those priorities, we met with groups of health care and economic development leaders, community officials, editors and movers and shakers about the School of Pharmacy. We also talked with individuals and legislators and foundations to explain our plan to embed our Mission to graduate persons of ability and conviction into the Pharmacy School.

Our message inspired a $35 million grant from Lilly Endowment Inc. that transformed our capacity to fully develop and build our new School of Pharmacy without undue stress on our undergraduate budgets.

We also talked with you – our alumni and generous friends – about our dreams to put students first. That message inspired a wonderful response from graduates and friends. During the 2010-2011 fiscal year, we completed the “nucleus gifts phase” of the $100 million Students First! campaign. Members of the Board of Trustees and others helped to light the path with million-dollar leadership gift and estate plans. At the end of our fiscal year, the College was 71.8 percent toward its goal.

Now our campaign has gone public, and Students First! is drawing support from a much wider group of donors who want the College to thrive. Currently, we have raised more than 75 percent of the bold goal of $100 million. We are working hard so our success builds at a strong pace.

Our Board of Trustees, always responsible and strategic, approved starting the renovation and expansion of the Holl-Kintner building into a “new” Academic Center while we continue to raise funds for construction. It was an urgent priority because of our need for more accessible and learning-friendly space. We broke ground last June on the $9.1 million project, and it will open in June 2012 with a significantly improved learning environment.

High priorities are safe and accessible learning facilities for our students, both to serve them while they are here and to recruit new students to the College. Currently, we rely heavily on the Administration Building for academic offices and classrooms. Its lack of accessibility to students with mobility challenges and its worn-out rooms are a problem. We expect many donors will support the Academic Center with gifts before we occupy it. There are many opportunities for naming classrooms and offices, and other learning spaces. Groups of families and friends are collaborating to name spaces after a favorite professor or parent, for example.

Our enrollment for fiscal year 2010-2011 was 1,278 students, up 4.5 percent from a year ago. Fortunately, we have the capacity in terms of space, student housing, faculty and staff to serve this many students.

With careful budgeting, we had a sufficient cash reserve so we could move through the summer without short-term borrowing. At the same time, we were able to fund initiatives that will strengthen the College long-term. In these precarious economic times, our students' families have less money available for college costs, so we have diverted a significant amount of our funds to student financial aid. Our endowment continues to recover from several years of market volatility. We are thrilled with campaign contributions that support endowed scholarships and professorships.

Student achievement buoys us! Our graduating seniors have earned 28 Fulbright awards in 15 years – more proportionally than any other Indiana college or university. A record-setting 43 students presented for our annual Student Research Symposium last spring. Many of those student scholars also presented their research at professional conventions and seminars in Indiana and nationally.

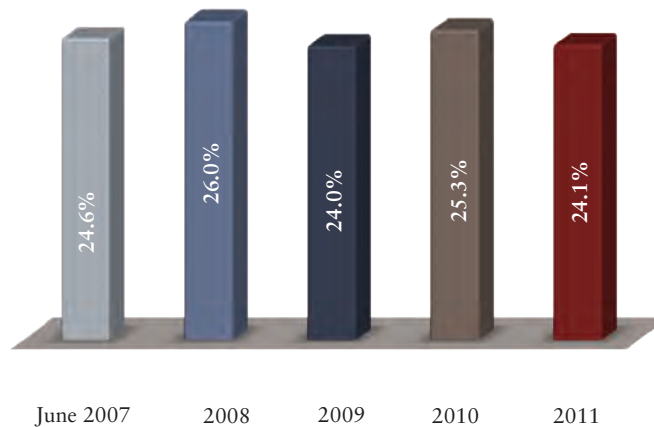

This has been a very good year! Amid economic challenges, we grew stronger. We continue to find ways of teaching and learning that keep our Mission and our strategic priorities front and center.

2010-2011 Highlights

Breathtaking $35 million speeds Pharmacy School

A $35 million grant from Lilly Endowment Inc. opened doors of opportunity for the School of Pharmacy. The first 70 doctoral students arriving in fall 2012 will find a north Fort Wayne facility equipped years ahead of schedule with state-of-the-art research labs. The Endowment is impressed by the enthusiasm for the School of Pharmacy, from the governor to health care leaders and $591,000 in grants from Indiana foundations and corporations.

Effective learning, exceeding expectations

Proof of the quality of a Manchester College education shines brightly with two more Fulbrights and a U.S. State Department scholar headed to the Far East to teach English. Winners of the annual Student Research Symposium wowed us with analyses of cancer PCNA inhibitors, perfectionism and 23 other topics. More proof: 91 percent of the May 2010 graduates had jobs, were in graduate school or volunteer service by Thanksgiving.

Building up, stretching our reach

Dedication of a $1.5 million addition to the PERC that opened athletic training facilities and adjustable classrooms “smart” for any subject was a hint of the learning spaces to come. (They also brought spacious new locker rooms.) In spring, we dug into a $9.1 million transformation of Holl-Kintner into an Academic Center that will merge contemporary learning with timeless liberal arts study.

The nation is compelled by our story

Washington Monthly magazine ranks the College 14th in the nation for its service learning and “contribution to the public good.” The Chronicle of Higher Education says MC is a “Best College in the Nation to Work For.” The College continues its “Best in the Midwest” and “Great School at a Great Price” reputation among leading college guides. Media call upon Manchester College for higher education trend stories, academic experts, book reviews and opinion pieces.

Highest enrollment since 1970s

As interest surged in careers in athletic training, sport management and the sciences, students chose Manchester College in record numbers for the third straight year. Official enrollment reached 1,278 students from 22 states and 21 countries. A newly restructured degree program in sport management attracted 33 students, helping the College to its largest enrollment since the Vietnam era.

Giving it forward, far forward

Four trustees and a future-thinking couple provided leadership giving with million-dollar (and multi-million-dollar) bequest plans that will nurture the Manchester mission for generations. “The world is a better place because there is a Manchester College,” said donor Marsha Palmer ’68 Link, chair of the Board of Trustees.

Eel River Initiative current quickens

Fundraising and awareness heightened for the $1 million Middle Eel River Watershed Initiative that entered its third year of serving a 30-mile stretch that borders campus. Grant writing by MC scientists secured an additional $2.9 million for landowner and agribusiness “best practices” and $120,000 to remove two useless dams. Crowds turned out for a river cleanup day and an educational family “float.”

Alumni, other great speakers, tell their stories

grown a former family-owned poultry business into a respected and successful distributor of service, equipment and high-quality foods. Troyer Foods, owned and operated by the Ball-Millers since 1996, serves a 300-mile radius from their Goshen headquarters.

Recently, the Ball-Millers announced a “family” decision to sell their business to their 280 employees. They will continue to lead the company, as ownership stock transfers to employees over the next 15 years through an Employee Stock Ownership Plan (ESOP).

“At Manchester you learn to learn.”

Family and faith are everything to Paris '81 and Becky '82 Ball-Miller – in their lives, in their work, in their education and in their philanthropy.

The College sweethearts have

Paris and Becky discovered paths to rational thought and a broader sense of community as Manchester College students. “At Manchester, you learn to learn,” Becky says. They are excited and confident in the College leadership and the $100 million Students First! fundraising campaign. “The $35 million Lilly Endowment grant for the School of Pharmacy speaks to the quality and trust in Manchester leadership,” says Paris.

Recently, Becky represented the Church of the Brethren on an ecumenical delegation of church leaders to Cuba. She first traveled to Cuba in 1979, with a January session class. On both trips, she saw tremendous opportunity for learning and for improving the human condition.

Becky served 10 years on the Board of Trustees; Paris joined the Board on Jan. 1, 2012. The Ball-Millers share their financial success with often sacrificial, often unrestricted giving to The Manchester Fund, scholarships and new learning spaces.

“Even if not a lot, consistency is important.”

“I tell people this story: I never would have gotten into med school without my Manchester degree,” says Dr. Ronald Beahm ’66. “The schools I applied to acknowledged that my liberal arts background gave me what I would need to be successful.”

Ironically, Beahm and Twila

Graber ’71x Beahm never crossed paths at Manchester. He graduated just before the young vocal music major was arriving. After alternative service during the Vietnam War, the MC biology major headed to Chicago for pre-med coursework. There, the two met. Petersime Chapel seemed the perfect beginning for their marriage.

And then on to Indiana University School of Medicine, which appreciated Ron’s liberal arts degree and tenacity. In time, the couple settled in Anderson with their three young boys. Ron practiced pediatrics and Twila earned an art degree, specializing in ceramics.

Ron recently retired. Twila, who taught at Anderson University, continues her career from her studio, Riverwalk Arts. The Anderson Center for the Arts recently hosted a spectacular exhibit of her fairy homes and sprites in mixed media. She recalls 7 a.m. classes at Manchester and caring, compassionate faculty – especially history Professor David Waas ’47, who remains a good friend.

They give annually to The Manchester Fund, knowing that “even if it is not a lot, the consistency is important.” Recently, the Beahms added Manchester to their will, ensuring that future physicians and artists will reap the benefits of a liberal arts education.

Warren Garner '50

Former leader of Manchester's education program who with his wife Helen Yeager '50 Garner created the Alumni Teacher of the Year recognition and generously support the College with annual and planned giving.

“Why do we contribute? It’s a love affair, I guess. Manchester has a long history of preparing teachers. If you want to influence lives, then this is a great place to make a start.”

“We try to help by funding the paper clips.”

Mike '85 and Jill Sherbahn '85 Robertson agree: Annual giving to The Manchester Fund is an investment in the College and in future leaders.

“Manchester College was a significant influence in preparing us for success. It only seems natural to share in a manner that would allow others to attain their own success,” said Jill Robertson, chief financial officer for Kauffman Engineering Inc., a Midwest manufacturing company based in Lebanon, Ind.

The CPAs, who met at MC, also have another reason to give: “Professor Art Gilbert '53 told us to, some 27 years ago in an Advanced Accounting lecture our senior year,” says Mike, founder of Robertson & Associates accounting and tax firm. “We understand that many people made investments in us that allowed us to go to college and have rewarding careers.”

Service on nonprofit boards showed the Robertsons the importance of funding the basic operations of an organization. “Many people only want to give restricted gifts to the high-profile ‘sexy’ projects, but the organization also needs paper clips and trash cans,” says Mike. “We try to help by funding the paper clips.”

“Methods used by our accounting professors motivated us to be prepared and to be confident in our responses, which carried over into our careers both professionally and ethically,” says Jill. The Robertsons also appreciate the emphasis MC places on certification, as they did for their CPA licenses.

They supported modernization of the College Union, motivated by Mike’s memories as chief of the set-up crew for movies and dances. “Tim Ogden '87 (now chair of Accounting and Business) was a crew member. We spent many late nights mopping and waxing the Union floors.”

“Whether you realize it or not, Manchester did contribute to your career,” says Jill. “Giving back is a simple way to say thank you.”

“We want to make a meaningful difference.”

“Give your time, talent and treasure” is the creed Rich Robins '64 lives by when he considers philanthropy to Manchester College.

He plays a key role in College advancement as a member of the Board of Trustees, as a strategic planner and as a leadership donor for the Students First! campaign.

Robins, a chemistry alumnus, retired in 2002 as vice president of performance systems for The Lubrizol Corp., a global specialty chemical company committed to improving the environment and its communities. It was a good, long marriage that philosophically began at Manchester. Ever the strategist, Robins began saving for college at age 10. The former North Manchester “townie” chose Manchester for its strength in the sciences and as a springboard to a Ph.D. in chemistry at The Ohio State University.

But he has great sensitivity for other lessons learned at his alma mater. “The education at Manchester enhances your sensitivity to life,” says Robins, who seeks to pay back – and pay forward – the lessons he learned. “Giving to Manchester is an investment in humankind,” he says. “For me, it is just one’s responsibility to his fellow man.”

Rich and his wife Kate faithfully support The Manchester Fund, so the College can use their gift without restrictions and to demonstrate their confidence in the leadership and stewardship of the College.

Robins also donates his talent and time to the Board of Trustees of Cuyahoga County, Ohio, helping to deliver housing for the homeless and working with Cleveland area children in crisis. It’s simple, they say: “We want to make a meaningful difference.”

“I give now so I can see the benefits.”

Jean Ann Tribolet '56 takes very personally the success of first-generation students at Manchester.

“I received an excellent education. The faculty who are legends now – I had them.” The Roanoke farm girl devoured every minute at MC, including arriving early to her class with psychology Professor A.R. Eikenberry '17, hoping he'd sit down with her for a chat. “I thought, I'd kinda like to be like him.”

And history Professor C. Ray Keim '18, who made class accommodations for her polio, “but cut no slack.” That courteous discipline set well with the future MC dean of women-professor-registrar. “You'd be surprised at how often I passed that on.”

“Manchester was a good fit for me; I felt at home, even though I was the first in my family to go to college. It was life-changing at a very core level, as a student and as faculty.” Tribolet gathered skills and gumption for a master's degree in personnel and guidance from the University of Colorado and a Ph.D. in counseling from Purdue University.

She sees future legends in current faculty. “The soul of Manchester is there as much as it was in 1952,” says Tribolet, whose home today was part of Roanoke Seminary, birthplace of her alma mater. “I'm glad it has remained constant, stable. We still produce Fulbrights. I still know there's great transformation for that first-gen student, just like there was for me.”

Tribolet has bequeathed generous sustenance to The Claude and Gladys Tribolet Scholarship Fund for first-generation students, established in her parents' memory. “I am glad to have given money while I'm still alive. I can see the benefits.”
